Senator Working on Drastic Georgia Hatch Bill

WOULD GO FURTHER THAN FEDERAL ACT

Mavity Wants to Ban Reappointment of Resigned Officials Who Run Unsuccessful Races

By The Associated Press.
If the special session of the Georgia legislature is empowered to enact legislation curbing political activity of state, county and city employees, Senator John L. Mavity, of Rossville, plans to propose a "far-reaching state Hatch bill."

Governor Rivers is known to be considering including authority to act on such legislation in his call for the September session, but he has not announced his decision. He praised the federal Hatch act and suggested all states should follow suit.

More Drastic Bill.
While Mavity's bill would follow generally the federal measure, he said "I want to go much deeper."

"For example," he explained, "I want to make it impossible to reappoint some state official who has resigned and run an unsuccessful race for some elective position."

Hope that Rivers would include both a "state Hatch" bill and civil service in his call was expressed by House Floor Leader Frank Gross, of Stephens county.

A measure as broad as that planned by Mavity would prevent state, county and city employees and officials from holding jobs on Democratic executive committees. The senator said he had not worked out details of his legislative idea yet.

Federal Measure.
The federal measure apparently will not affect the state Democratic executive committee to any appreciable extent. Vice Chairman Zach Arnold said there probably were not more than two or three of the 120 committeemen who held federal positions. He did not disclose names.

Mavity said he would seek particularly to prohibit reappointment to a state job after the resigned appointee had run for the legislature and lost.

Assembly Enacted 1,340 New Laws at Cost of $736,547 in Sessions During Rivers' Terms.

By The Associated Press.
Georgia's general assembly has placed 1,340 new laws on the statute books, at a cost of $736,547.42, in three sessions during Governor Rivers' administration.

The impending extra session, announced by the chief executive for the first week in September, will be the fourth meeting since his inauguration January 12, 1937.

Based on past costs, the assembly must appropriate $3,302.90 for every day it expects to be in session under the Governor's September call.

Works 223 Days.

Records in the secretary of state's office show the legislature has been at work 223 days since the Governor took office—70 each in the regular sessions of 1937 and 1939, and 83 days in the 1937-38 extra session. This, attaches calculated, was equivalent to seven months, or approximately one day out of every four since the Governor's inauguration.

A total of 1,110 bills were offered in the 1937 regular session, of which 520 reached the Governor's desk. He signed 509, vetoed 11. In the 1937-38 extra session, 712 measures were introduced, and 410 became law. There were 1,056 bills proposed in the last session, of which 427 were enacted and six vetoed.

In the three sessions members of the house and senate considered 937 resolutions. Two hundred were adopted.

$230,000 a Session.
Legislative costs average nearly a quarter-million dollars per session, the Department of Audits disclosed.

The state paid $243,215.03 for the 1937 regular session; $258,093.29 for the 1937-38 extra meeting; and $235,239.10 for 1939's regular session.

It will be the third time since 1783, Carnegie library researchers said, that the assembly has met four times in a single Governor's administration.

Man in Iron Lung in Surprise Wedding.

Acme Telephoto.

Fred Snite Jr., known the world over as "the man in the iron lung," receives the nuptial kiss of his bride, the former Teresa Larkin, of Dayton, Ohio, following a surprise ceremony at Snite's banker-father's home in a Chicago suburb, yesterday. Then they were off for an afternoon's honeymoon in the $15,000 trailer built to accommodate the "iron lung" in which Snite has battled infantile paralysis for the last three years.

DANZIG FUEHRER SILENT ON HITLER

Speech Leaves Europe in Doubt as Forster Makes Appeal to Democracies.

By The Associated Press.
In a spectacular setting of storm troopers whipped into keen expectancy to hear the latest word from Adolf Hitler, Danzig's Nazi Leader Albert Forster restated his case for union with Germany last night but gave no inkling of the Fuehrer's immediate plans.

When he had finished, responsible persons in Wawasz said the speech in no way changed the fundamental issue over the Free City despite its "harsh tone and decided anti-Polish character."

Forster's main theme was an indirect appeal to the people of Great Britain, France and the United States to recognize that "Danzig is German"—and thus prevent war.

Ciano Heads for Reich.
He had given cues for his crowd of 40,000 listeners to shout "Pfu!" (at Poland) and "we want to return to the Reich," a special train was carrying Italy's foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, to Salzburg for a significant meeting with the German foreign minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

Diplomats in Rome expected Count Ciano would advise against any German action on Danzig that might lead to war.

Another prime topic expected to be brought into the conversation was the possibility of Japan's joining the military alliance which Germany and Italy signed last May, and the status of Yugoslavia who has rejected Axis demands for use of her railroads and Axis supervision of her economic and military centers in war time.

Ultimate Aim Cited.
Forster, just back from a visit to Hitler, failed to tell what is just ahead but he left no doubt of the German leader's ultimate intentions.

"The Danzig population," Forster declared, "believes implicitly that the hour of liberation is coming and that the Free City will return to the Reich."

Snite Weds Beauty Who Cheered Him

'Man in Iron Lung' Takes Bride in Surprise Match at Home.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—(P)—Fred Snite Jr., who has lived in "iron lungs" for three years and four months, married today a pretty brunette who cheered and comforted him during his valiant struggle to shake off the shackles of infantile paralysis.

The unheralded ceremony—it surprised some relatives and amazed friends the smiling "boiler kid" had made on three continents—was performed in the home of Snite's banker father in suburban River Forest.

Young Snite and Miss Teresa Larkin, of Dayton, Ohio, were married by the Rev. J. W. Morrison in the large living room in the presence of a small gathering of intimates before a fireplace draped with white and decorated with flowers.

Snite lay full-length in the boiler type iron lung in which he has slept and rested most of the time since the spring of 1936. The bride stood beside him, clad in a knee-length white chiffon dress. She carried orchids.

The groom observed his twenty-ninth birthday anniversary July 31; the bride is 25. A wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony and the newlyweds then set off on a brief honeymoon in the $15,000 trailer especially constructed to facilitate Snite's travels. The plans called for cruising about neighboring Oak Park and returning home to receive guests in the evening.

The young couple had kept its plans pretty much to itself, said the groom's father, commenting: "I guess they're just going for a trailer ride, all right. So far as I know they haven't said anything to anyone about making a long trip. Fred did say jokingly that they might even go to Niagara Falls to see whether the water was still running."

Young Fred epitomized the day's experiences with the radiant declaration, "I've got a new boss now, and I'm very happy."

The bride, tall and slender, acknowledged she had been in love with Fred for some time.

GUARDS ORDERED TO 'SHOOT TO KILL' ESCAPING FELONS

State Penal Board Gives Franklin County 30 Days to Halt Breaks or Have Its Camp Abolished.

An order to "shoot to kill" escaping convicts came yesterday from the State Board of Penal Administration as it gave Franklin county 30 days to stop escapes or have its prison camp abolished.

G. R. Harrison, ordinary of Franklin county (Carnesville) appeared before the board to advocate the return of shackles and for the elimination of the board order to fire any guard who allows a prisoner to escape.

No action was taken on his requests but the board voted to suspend Acting Warden J. W. Payne and to require Harrison to obtain "trained, experienced guards" for the camp immediately.

Eight Felons Escaped.

Eight prisoners, including Forrest Ewing, pal of the notorious Forrest Turner, have escaped from the camp since July 3, it was reported.

Members of the board and A. M. (Phil) Anderson, secretary, heard Harrison admit that he "had no criticism to offer of the board" and that negligence of the Franklin county guards was responsible for the eight escapes recently.

Acting Warden Payne had been quoted in newspapers as saying that most of the escaped convicts "just walked off" and Harrison had been quoted as asserting that the blame lay with the board because of the order removing shackles from prisoners, because of the necessity for discharging every experienced guard who allowed a prisoner to escape, and because hardened criminals from Tattnell prison had been sent to his camp.

Denies Criticism.

The ordinary, who acts as general county manager, denied he had criticized the board, asserted he had asked for the prisoners from Tattnell, and declared that "somebody quoted me as saying things I didn't say."

"I think that a lot of the convicts wouldn't run off if they had chains on 'em," he told the board.

"The attitude of this board is to shoot and shoot to kill when a prisoner tries to escape," Phil Anderson replied.

"If you can't get the guards in Franklin county who can shoot and will shoot we can get them for you," he added.

Grover Byars, of Rome, chairman of the board, informed Harrison that he must "stop all escapes within 30 days" or the state would place the 47 convicts in other camps.

Assaults Camp's Record.

Dr. John R. Lewis, of Lewiston, board member, asserted the average escapes for the state as a whole is only eight-tenths of one per cent, but asserted that Franklin's record is about 20 per cent—"indicating that the fault lies with your camp," he added.

Harrison said his guards had been summoned in Page 7, Column 4.

Charles R. Jefferson, above, self-styled "movie talent scout," confessed kidnaping Ruth Frances Dunn and Jean Bolton, and slaying the former.

FILM-STRUCK GIRL STABBED TO DEATH

'Talent Scout' Confesses Slaying Ruth Dunn; Her Companion Unharmed.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Aug. 10.—(P)—Charles Jefferson, termed an adventurous egoist by detectives, said in his jail cell today he concocted his scheme to kidnap two Miami girls so he would be sent to the electric chair and thus "get even" with a former sweetheart.

His story of important movie connections and promises to arrange careers for the two in California, he admitted, were all fiction.

Jefferson, man of many aliases, talked frankly with a Palm Beach Post-Times reporter in the presence of jail officials.

Blames It on Love

He denied any intention of harming Ruth Frances Dunn, 17, whom he admitted slaying, or Jean Bolton, 19, whom he held captive for three days and nights.

Jefferson blamed the whole matter on desperation because of his love for a former sweetheart.

"She drove me crazy," he asserted. "Since I left her, I haven't known what I was doing most of the time. I got into trouble almost everywhere I stopped."

While blaming one girl for his troubles, Jefferson expressed content in mail fraud indictments against Seymour Weiss and others here recently, today questioned Abraham L. Shushan, former pillar of the old Huey P. Long political machine, whose jury acquittal here in 1935 is under investigation.

Meanwhile Assistant Attorney General John Rogge gave a hint that another figure high in state circles was under investigation here in an alleged false testimony given in a naturalization case. He declined to reveal any names.

High Official At L.S.U. Dies Of Gun Shot

Dr. Smith's Secretary's Mate Believed Suicide Victim.

BATON ROUGE, Aug. 10.—(P) George Heidelberg, student employment supervisor at Louisiana State University, died today from a bullet wound which Chief of Police W. D. Atkins said apparently was self-inflicted.

Heidelberg died at a hospital three hours after he was found wounded lying in a pool of blood with a pistol nearby.

His wife was secretary to Dr. James Monroe Smith, much indicted former president of the university on charges of embezzlement, forgery and other alleged crimes.

She has continued serving as secretary to Dr. Paul M. Herbert, who succeeded Smith as acting president.

Student employment and scholarship grants at the university were recently the subject of a thorough investigation by L. S. U. authorities, while NYA employment at the university, also administered under Heidelberg's direction, has been under the scrutiny of federal investigators.

POSTAL AUTHORITIES QUESTION SHUSHAN

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 10.—(P) Federal postal inspectors, who participated in the inquiry resulting in mail fraud indictments against Seymour Weiss and others here recently, today questioned Abraham L. Shushan, former pillar of the old Huey P. Long political machine, whose jury acquittal here in 1935 is under investigation.

Meanwhile Assistant Attorney General John Rogge gave a hint that another figure high in state circles was under investigation here in an alleged false testimony given in a naturalization case. He declined to reveal any names.

ISSUE MADE FOR YOUNG DEMOCRATS

Roosevelt Warns Against 'Lip-Service Candidate,' 'Straddlebug Platform' as Suicide for Party.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 10.—(AP)—President Roosevelt tonight told the Young Democrats' national convention that if his party insisted on nominating "conservative or lip-service candidates" in 1940 he would take no active part in "such an unfortunate suicide of the old Democratic party."

The chief executive, in a message read to the crowded, opening meeting by Pitt Tyson Maner, of Montgomery, Ala., retiring president of the Young Comments of Democratic leaders on the President's message will be found on page 11.

Democratic Clubs of America, asserted flatly he would not support a conservative in 1940.

Threatens 'Sit Down.'

"If we nominate conservative candidates, or lip-service candidates, on a straddlebug platform," he said, "I personally, for my own self-respect and because of my long service to, and belief in liberal democracy, will find it impossible to have any active part in such an unfortunate suicide of the old Democratic party."

He said, in substance, he not only would "take a walk" as Alfred E. Smith did on the party before Roosevelt's renomination, but he predicted the Democratic party would "fall if it goes conservative next year, or if it is led by people who can offer naught but fine phrases."

No Hint on Third Term.

Giving no hint as to how he feels on a third term, Mr. Roosevelt added he did not expect a conservative to be nominated "for I believe the convention (next year) will see the political wisdom, as well as the national wisdom, of giving to the voters of the United States an opportunity to maintain the practice and the policy of moving forward with a liberal, and humanitarian program."

Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida, in a keynote speech following Maner's opening address, favored a "third term for Roosevelt's ideas" in 1940 and asserted the "King-makers of Wall Street" already had picked Gov. John M. Bricker, of Ohio, for President, and, he believed, Thomas E. Dewey, New York district attorney, for vice president.

Young Maner opened the three-

McLaglen Takes Monkey Gland 'Shots'—To Aid His Complexion.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 10.—(P) Victor McLaglen, portrayed of virile screen roles, has been taking monkey gland "shots" for a long time.

The information was contained in a deposition disclosed today by S. S. Hahn, attorney for Dr. S. G. Sonneland. The physician is suing McLaglen for $2,789 for medical services to the actor. Dr. Sonneland asserted McLaglen needed the "shots" to build up his strength and they had been administered since 1935.

However, McLaglen declared he took them mainly because the doctor was a good friend and he wanted to see him make some money.

"If you didn't need these shots for the purposes intended by the doctor," McLaglen was asked, "why did you let him give them to you practically every week?"

"Well," he replied, "the doctor said they would improve my complexion."

Georgia's Record for Reductions In Traffic Deaths Broken in July

10 More Killed Last Month Than for Same Period in 1938.

Georgia's record for consecutive monthly reductions in traffic fatalities was broken in July with an increase of 10 over last year in the number of persons killed and nearly 200 in the number injured, records of the Department of Public Safety revealed yesterday.

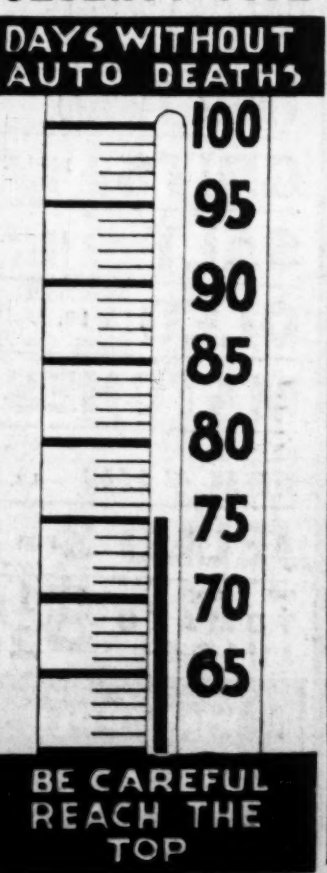

Commissioner Lon Sullivan said the month's totals were 55 deaths and 1,925 injuries on the streets and highways of the state as compared with 45 deaths and 1,751 injuries during July, 1938.

The record for the first six months of this year showed a decrease of 73 in the number of traffic fatalities which gave Georgia the fifth best accident reduction record in the country.

Sullivan blamed "speed and carelessness" for the sudden increase and declared that "more stringent enforcement" would be necessary to curb the upward trend.

The department has been carrying forward a program of education among drivers, including the necessity to "dim" bright lights for passing automobiles.

GRADING, TYING LAW
IN TOBACCO URGED

Low Prices Prove Need, Senator Harrell Says.

Low prices for Georgia tobacco this year demonstrates the need for a grading and tying law, State Senator Wallace E. Harrell, who unsuccessfully sponsored such a measure at the last general assembly, asserted yesterday.

Harrell said "it would be unnecessary to compel reduction in tobacco acreage if the producers would realize their tobacco will bring more money if properly cured and graded. He pointed out that tobacco prices in South Carolina were four and five cents a pound more than in Georgia this year. He advocated a longer marketing season to give more time to grade and prepare the crop.

STEALS $30—MILK

It must have been an anemic Raffles who entered the residence of J. G. Bornstein, 1000 Lanier boulevard, sometime Wednesday night.

With all the care of the ace of fictional burglars, the thief made elaborate preparations for his entry by cutting telephone wires and raising the screen noiselessly.

Having removed $30 from Mr. Bornstein's wallet without detection, the burglar evidently felt himself to be in need of nourishment, and helped himself to a quart of milk from the refrigerator.

Mr. Bornstein reported to police that he was shedding no tears over the milk, even though part of it was spilled, but he was considerably irritated by the loss of his $30.

It Just Had To Be in Georgia for Them

Lure of State Causes Georgian
To Change Plans, Marry Here

R. Herndon Radcliff, Miss Long Suddenly Shift Arrangements So Ceremony Can Be Held Amid the 'Red Clay Hills.'

The call of his native red clay hills of Georgia led a Mobile road contractor yesterday to alter his marriage plans on the spur of the moment and have the ceremony performed in Atlanta.

With his bride-to-be, Miss Mary Elizabeth Long, 27, of New York, the prospective groom, R. Herndon Radcliff, was en route from Washington by automobile with a party of friends for the wedding, in Mobile.

As they crossed the Savannah river into Georgia, friends explained, Radcliff—who was born in Meriwether county—suddenly suggested the change of plans. His betrothed readily assented. Atlanta was selected as the scene.

Quickly arrangements were made, with the aid of Congressman Frank Boykin, of Alabama, and Alphonse Lucas, the congressman's executive secretary, who were in the party, and the ceremony was performed in the office of Judge Thomas H. Jeffries, of the court of ordinary, at the courthouse. The service was read by the Rev. E. P. Eubanks, of Mount Vernon Methodist church, Judge Jeffries' pastor.

Others in the wedding party were Miss Katharine Shreve, another secretary of the congressman; Albert E. Earnest, of Savannah, and A. L. Deane, of New York.

CHINA INCREASES
LEAF PURCHASES

Georgia Benefits in Sale of 43,855,831 Pounds for $4,405,285.

War-torn China increased her purchases of American tobacco by more than $1,250,000 during the first six months of 1939, as compared with the same period a year ago.

W. H. Schroder, district manager of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, said tobacco division figures "indicates an increased volume" of Georgia leaf was included in the exports of unmanufactured leaf to China.

The shipments for the period to June 30 amounted to 43,855,831 pounds valued at $4,405,285, as compared with the 1938 exports of 30,190,040 pounds for $3,087,107, Schroder said.

This approximated shipments to the United Kingdom of 45,023,079 pounds, although China's imports consisted largely of medium grades of leaf and stems and the value did not approach the $17,922,422 fixed on the English purchases.

Unmanufactured tobacco purchases increased in China from $1,454,169 in 1935 to $2,819,175 in 1936; $3,693,028 in 1937 and $3,087,107 in 1938. The United Kingdom figures, however, dropped sharply from last year's $30,269,850, although comparing favorably with the $12,264,386 of 1937; $22,932,300 in 1936 and $18,555,378 in 1935.

MRS. STARK DENIES G-MEN GUARDING HER 2 DAUGHTERS

Wife of Missouri Governor Also Brands as False Reports of Notes Threatening Their Lives

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Reports that two young daughters of Governor Lloyd C. Stark, of Missouri, were being guarded by G-men because of letters threatening their lives were termed "perfectly ridiculous" by Mrs. Stark tonight.

"There's not a word of truth in it," she asserted.

The report began after the daughters, Molly, 7, and Katherine, 5, did not appear at Missouri Day ceremonies at the World's Fair. Mrs. Stark said the girls didn't go because they were too young.

She said other reports that the Governor had special police protection in New York were untrue. Stark gained national prominence by his activities in helping break the Pendergast political machine in Kansas City. He was not available for comment.

U. S. MOVES AGAINST MID-SOUTH THEATERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The Justice Department extended its campaign against alleged monopoly in the movies to the mid-south today with announcement of a third suit against a theater chain. A petition in equity will be filed in federal court at Nashville, Tenn., tomorrow, the department said, charging restraint of trade against the Crescent Amusement Company and affiliates operating in Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi and Arkansas and against all the major producers.

Boned and Stuffed Veal Shoulder Makes Pretty Roast

Boned, rolled veal roast stuffed with frankfurters makes this unusually attractive meat for your Sunday dinner. It looks "tricky" but really is quite simple. Your market man will bone the shoulder and place frankfurters before rolling it up. Garnish with fruit.

Boneless Rolled Roast of Veal Makes Delicious Sunday Dinner

One of Most Deliciously Flavored Meats, It's Often Called 'City Chicken.' Should Be Cooked at Low Temperature for Best Results.

By SALLY SAVER.

What do you say we have veal roast for Sunday dinner? A boneless, rolled roast, stuffed with frankfurters or not, as you like, would be welcomed by anyone with a taste for something good.

Veal is one of the most delicately flavored meats, being often used with chicken, or as substitute for chicken. Often veal is called "city chicken."

The roast presented today is shoulder of veal, which your market man will bone and roll for you upon request. The frankfurters, if you choose to use them in your roast, are placed in the boned roast by the market man before he rolls it up. When your roast comes from the market it is ready for the roasting pan.

Veal is a very lean meat, and should be roasted at low temperature to bring out the best of its flavor. Sprinkle the roast with salt and pepper and place on a rack in an open roasting pan. Do not cover, and do not add any water. Allow about 40 minutes a pound for roasting a boned veal roast. If your roast has a very thin covering of fat, lay several strips of bacon over the top. In case you do not want the stuffing of frankfurters, you will find your boned rolled roast quite delicious if you will rub it with a little powdered ginger, black pepper and onion salt before cooking.

Or you may want to make your own favorite stuffing to roll inside the roast or to cook with it. The roast pictured above has pear halves filled with a prune for a garnish. Another good garnish is stuffed pears made in this way: Work paprika well into cream cheese, form into balls and place in the center of pear halves. Place around the roast a few minutes before it is done. When cheese melts, remove from oven and serve on platter around the roast. Halves of fresh pears baked until tender are excellent, too, with roast.

Make the most of the warm weather while it lasts and serve very meat that you can eat outdoors. Sunday suppers can easily be laid on the porch or on a garden table. Even the simplest fare in such surroundings seems festive.

For Sunday supper here is a two-decker sandwich with melted cheese poured over which will be

3 ATLANTANS HURT IN AUTO COLLISION

Miss Evelyn Lanier and Mrs. H. J. Durden Enter Macon Hospital.

MACON, Ga., Aug. 10.—(P)—Two Atlanta residents were admitted to Macon hospital tonight for treatment of injuries suffered in an automobile collision two miles north of Bolingbroke.

Miss Evelyn Lanier, 538 Greenwood street, suffered a fractured vertebra; Mrs. H. J. Durden, 488 Woodward avenue, S. E., a fractured ankle and Mr. Durden, possible shoulder injuries. The two women were admitted and were in fair condition late tonight.

Another occupant of the car, Mrs. J. D. Reid, of the Greenwood street address, escaped injury.

The party was en route home from Savannah and had stopped here.

Mr. Durden said his car collided with a southbound machine

'Still Alive Despite 15 Doctors'—Cobb

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 10.—(P)—Recovered from his bout with a stomach disorder which laid him low two week ends ago, humorist Irvin S. Cobb plans to leave his hospital bed "before morning" for his Santa Monica, Calif., home.

The noted writer was stricken while vacationing at the Bohemian Club's resort north of here. "I couldn't have been stricken in a better place," Cobb mused. "Most of San Francisco's distinguished physicians and surgeons were there and I got $100,000 worth of free medical advice for nothing. It isn't often that a man can boast he had 15 doctors and lived."

driven by a Mobile, Ala., man, but that no occupant of the second car was hurt. The Durden machine was heavily damaged when it struck a post and ran into a filed.

MAE SUES MDVANI FOR SUPPORT OF SON

Miss Murray said she is without theatrical employment but that the prince is receiving more than $5,000 a month.

Purge of Fulton-Owned Autos Opens

Commission at Same Time
Notifies 18 Employees
County Will Discontinue
Paying Telephone Bills.

Fulton county commissioners yesterday initiated a secret program to cut the number of automobiles provided for county employees and at the same time notified 18 county employees for whom they have been paying telephone bills that the practice will be discontinued.

The actions were the result of an unannounced meeting of commissioners called Wednesday. Frank R. Fling, commission clerk, gave no intimation of the orders following the meeting but admitted they were included in the minutes.

With grand jury presentments in prospect on many phases of county administration, the commission met Wednesday for the announced purpose of taking official action to indemnify the state against private property damage incident to several malaria drainage projects.

Tells of Drainage Action.
After the meeting, Fling was asked what transpired. He announced the drainage matter, but failed to mention the other actions.

Commissioner Gloor Hailey said yesterday that he will demand at the next meeting of the board that "closed door sessions of the board be abolished entirely, and that newsmen be notified of all special called meetings in the future at the same time that commissioners are notified."

The next regular meeting of the board is slated for Wednesday, September 6.

Surveys Planned.
Under the latest car purge order, the commission chairman of each committee will conduct a personal survey of his department and will recommend elimination of as many of the 111 private passenger automobiles now provided for employees as possible.

Similar action was under way by a special subcommittee of the Fulton grand jury.

Only the telephones in the homes of county policemen will be paid for by the county, under the latest order of the board, and 18 employees who previously sent their phone bills to the county will pay them themselves in the future if they continue to have such service.

Those affected by the telephone order are:
H. F. Palmer, L. W. Allen, H. L. Perryman, J. P. McCleskey, A. A. Clarke, C. F. Collier, E. M. White, J. L. Dickerson, B. P. Coker, John M. Crane, George Pounds, I. C. Bryant, M. L. Baker, G. W. Waits, W. G. Patton, J. W. Ball, W. T. Cawthon and G. W. Whitehead.

Names of 40 Fulton county residents yesterday from which 23 will be chosen for the new September-October grand jury to investigate county affairs were drawn yesterday by Judge Virlyn B. Moore, of Fulton county superior court.

If the present grand jury passes any of the investigations it now has under way to the new body, they will be passed to the hands of those drawn yesterday.

Venue Listed.
The 40 drawn from the grand jury box are:
E. H. Ginn, John F. Clegg, C. D. Parks, James Kingston, S. N. F. Le, Sam A. Johnston, Henry L. DeGiv, E. J. Costley, John W. Boone, T. M. Waters, E. D. Cox, William C. Wardlaw, P. D. O'Kelley.

Another highlight of the affair was the swan water drill, in which about 12 youngsters, laden by life-sized papier mache swans, propelled the floating "costumes" about the lake in a startling realistic manner.

Dancer as Cool and Graceful as Pavlova

Not even worried about the possibility that she might miss her cue, Miss Mary Ann Linane, talented toe dancer, last night took plenty of time to put the finishing touches to her makeup before appearing in a swan solo dance as part of the Hawaiian water festival at Moxy park.

Huge Crowd Sees 200 Atlantans Enact Colorful Hawaiian Festival

Vivid Portrayal of Island Pageant Given in Tropical Background on Moxy Park Lake to Strains of Guitars.

To the throbbing strains of Hawaiian guitars, and with a tropical background depicting a Hawaiian temple, the palace of a king, and the crater of Mouna Loa in eruption, more than 200 Atlanta young people last night enacted an island festival for a crowd that overflowed Moxy park.

Most of the action took place in the water of the park lake, with the dances being staged on a platform erected at the pool's edge and screened by a 15-foot curtain of spouting water.

Music by Cecil White's group of electric guitarists and the WPA orchestra, and colored lights playing on the settings brought exclamations of surprise and pleasure from the audience seated across the lake.

The festival depicted the sacrifice of a young Hawaiian prince, portrayed by Miss Mary Ann Linane, leaped into the erupting volcano, Mouna Loa.

'EMERGENCY OVER' CONGRESSMAN SAYS

Pace, at Home in America,
Sees Trend Toward Balanced Budget.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

AMERICA, Ga., Aug. 10.—Many members of congress "feel that the emergency period has ended and that appropriations should be adjusted to more normal conditions," Congressman Stephen Pace, of the third district, stated yesterday. Mr. Pace arrived in America from Washington, and has established offices in the post office building.

"Every person concerned about the future of the nation is anxious to see the day when the national budget will be in balance," Mr. Pace stated. "For the last eight years the budget has been out of balance, the excess expenditures having been made necessary by large appropriations for work relief, social security, farm aid, and national defense."

"Considerable reduction in appropriations would result in increased activity in private industry, better farm prices and more confidence in business circles," he asserted. "I feel that the last congress made a substantial contribution toward such recovery."

"No one expects or desires repeal of the great social reforms enacted into law during the last several years, but there is a strong feeling that the time has come to put these reforms on a pay-as-you-go basis," the congressman said.

ROBERTS MOVES TO BEN HILL FARM

Must Have Fresh Milk, Commissioner Says.

"I had to get where I could drink fresh milk," he explained.

CORN PROSPECTS CUT BY DROUTH

110,907,000 Bushels Under Expectations Seen.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(P)—Drouth conditions on the Great Plains during July reduced the nation's 1939 corn prospects 110,907,000 bushels to 2,459,888,000 bushels, the Agriculture Department reported today, and thereby virtually wiped out the possibility of marketing quotas on the crops.

July prospects increased 14,777,000 bushels to 731,432,000.

Planning Commission's Approval On County Bus Extension Urged

Zoning Group Wants Any New Lines Considered in Relation to Other Phases of Master Program for Fulton; Business Barred on Cheshire Bridge Road.

Planning commission approval of bus and other transportation expansion in Fulton county, to prevent haphazard developments, was sought yesterday by the Fulton County Board of Zoning Appeals.

Courtland Gilbert, secretary, was instructed to appear at the next meeting of the Fulton county commission and ask that body to refer to the planning commission all future transportation extension proposals so that they may be made to conform to the master plan of development.

The board barred business extensions on Cheshire Bridge road leading into the Buford highway, and observers regarded the action as a future policy.

Specific action was to reject a petition for establishment of a filling station north of the intersection of Piedmont and Cheshire Bridge roads.

Set-backs to eliminate traffic hazards and beautification of projected developments also were demanded when the board agreed to approve a petition to zone for business a stretch at Peachtree and Brighton roads after the restrictions were written into the zoning order.

Other actions included denial of a permit to establish a liquor store at 2775 Piedmont road and approval of a petition for a liquor store at 2995 Peachtree road.

NLRB RULES FORD CONCERN VIOLATED THE WAGNER ACT

Revises Previous Order; Says Company Must Correct Certain Practices Described Unfair.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(P)—The National Labor Relations Board, revising a previous order, ruled today that the Ford Motor Company had violated the Wagner labor act and must correct certain labor practices described as unfair.

The board held that the company was guilty of discrimination in the discharge of 24 employees. It ordered the company to offer reinstatement to the 24 with back pay, and stop discouraging membership in the United Automobile Workers' Union, assaulting or intimidating union men or interfering with employees' collective bargaining rights.

The case grew out of the UAW's attempts to circulate union handbills at the company's gates and the violence that followed. Walter P. Reuther and Richard T. Frankenstein, UAW officers, were beaten.

Today's order was similar to one issued December 22, 1937.

WOMAN'S SCREAMS ROUT INTRUDER

Housewife Answers Bell; Man Demands Money.

Answering the insistent ring of her doorbell yesterday morning, Mrs. F. L. Muller, 1088 North avenue, found a negro man standing at the door of her apartment who said that he "had a package for Mrs. McWilliams." Mrs. Muller reported to police that when she told him that he had the wrong address, the man seized her and demanded that she give him "all the money she had in the house." He fled, however, when she screamed for help.

CONSTITUTION FETES CARRIERS AT PARTY

Annual Picnic, Barbecue Is Held at Lakewood Park.

The men who brave wind, rain, sleet or snow to bring you your morning Constitution were feted by The Constitution yesterday at the annual barbecue and picnic at Lakewood park.

Constitution carriers, their assistants and their families attended the seventh annual outing. Highlight of the day's festivities was the serving of barbecue and all the trimmings in the park pavilion at noon.

The park took on the atmosphere of the Southeastern Fair as the throng mingled on the midway, riding the merry-go-round, greyhound, ferris wheel and other amusement devices. In the afternoon the carriers competed in a softball game.

J. H. Moye, circulation manager of The Constitution, was official host for the occasion. Hugh H. Trotter, vice president and business manager, and other officials of the newspaper also were present.

"This picnic every year gives the carriers an opportunity to get together and have a good time," Moye explained. The group showed their enthusiasm when they gathered to have their picture taken for the newspaper they sell.

AUTO DEALER HITS TITLE LAW PLAN

John E. Smith Terms Proposal 'Raid on Taxpayers.'

Passage of a title law in Georgia requiring owners of motor vehicles to furnish conclusive proof of ownership in applying for license tags through the registration of bills of sale would be "another raid on the taxpayers," John E. Smith, Atlanta automobile dealer, said yesterday.

Smith said "a law has been proposed at practically every session of the legislature for the past 10 or 15 years whereby the clerk of court, the ordinary, or the sheriff should inspect each and every car and collect a dollar fee for doing so. Of course, any proposed bill without such an inspection would be futile but a fee for inspection is just another raid on the taxpayers."

Declaring that the present application blank for license tags provides for the procurement of all information necessary, Smith said a title law was "unnecessary and would prove a great nuisance as well as an expense to automobile owners."

A bill requiring the registration of bills of sale recently was proposed for introduction at the next session of the legislature.

9,000 in Atlanta Get Work In Various Federal Agencies

Draw Annual Pay Roll of $14,500,000, Survey by Chamber Industrial Bureau Shows; Figure Is Exclusive of Relief Employees.

Federal agencies in Atlanta give work to more than 9,000 persons, exclusive of relief workers, and have an annual payroll of $14,500,000, a survey made by the Industrial Bureau of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce shows.

Released yesterday by Ivan Allen, chairman, the report listed 116 departments and agencies, 69 of which are regional in scope. Some of the regional offices cover states immediately surrounding Georgia, others extend over the entire southeast, while the inspector's office of the Post Office Department has Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands under its jurisdiction.

Offices in addition to regional serve either the state or the immediate Atlanta area.

The largest employer is the Post Office Department with 2,400 on its rolls. Of these, 1,450 work for the railway mail service, 917 in the Atlanta post offices, and 40 in the

TYPHOID IN STATE GREATLY REDUCED

Only 269 Cases Reported This Year; 445 Is Same 1938 Period.

The number of typhoid fever cases in Georgia has been cut almost in half for the first seven months of this year as compared with the same period in 1938, Dr. Dan Bowdoin, of the health department, revealed yesterday. No epidemics have been reported this year, he said.

Through July only 269 cases have been reported, with 134 of these in July, as compared with 445 for the same period last year.

The reduction was attributed to the fact 32 typhoid germ carriers were isolated last year and 15 have been located this year, and because 275,200 persons, or one-twelfth of the state population were inoculated in 1938.

Since the department began a concentrated drive against typhoid fever in 1931—when 513 Georgians died of the disease—the death rate has been reduced continuously until last year there were only 121 deaths, and only 13 deaths have been reported so far this year.

MRS. J. D. LITTLE RITES POSTPONED

Body Fails to Arrive on Bremen Yesterday as Scheduled.

Final rites for Mrs. John Dozier Little, originally scheduled for this morning at her home, 2998 Habersham road, have been postponed due to the failure of the body to arrive from Europe yesterday on the steamer Bremen, as planned, friends here were notified.

Mrs. Little, widow of a well-known Atlanta attorney and a member of a prominent Georgia family, died in Karlsruhe, Germany, July 26, where she had planned to spend the summer.

She was accompanied by Mrs. Mary Henderson, her companion for many years, who returned yesterday on the Bremen. No explanations were offered as to why the body had not been brought over in the same boat except that it apparently missed connections somewhere on the continent.

RURAL POWER USE SHOWS INCREASE

Clients in Barnesville Area Grow From 193 to 396 in One Year.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Just a year ago today, 193 homes in the rural sections near Barnesville received their first taste of electric power despite the fact that President Roosevelt was so busy attempting to "purge" Senator George he forgot to throw the switch to inaugurate the new service.

Twelve months later those same 193 families are still customers of the Barnesville REA office and the total of the homes now enjoying the benefits of electricity has been increased to 396. Officials of the REA expect the August billings to pass the 400 mark.

There has not been a single request for discontinuance or cancellation and applications for installations have been coming in steadily throughout the entire territory served by the system.

W. Y. Andrews, project supervisor, said yesterday he is hoping for an allotment of an additional 200 miles of power lines which would bring the new services within reach of still more potential customers.

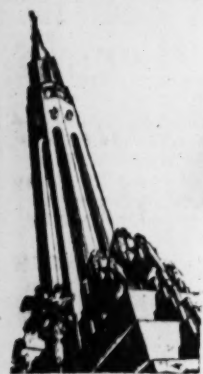

Existing facilities already have resulted in a marked increase in the use of labor-saving devices for home and farm use such as water pumps, milk cooling machines and other gadgets, officials state.

FILM-STRUCK GIRL STABBED TO DEATH

cern for another, Beth Collar, 24, of Tustin, Cal., his companion on a trip from Denver to Miami—now held in a Miami jail as a material witness.

Absolves Girl Companion.
"She had absolutely no part in all this," he said of pretty, brunette Miss Collar. "I hope they don't try to connect her with it."

At Miami, Miss Collar—who also hoped to attain a radio or screen career through her contact with Jefferson—sobbed at the news of the accusations against him.

"He seemed to me the ideal man and he undoubtedly had talent in theatrical work," she said.

"He was so nice. He was very considerate, was never cruel to me and was so quiet—almost bashful—that I can't conceive of him harming anyone."

Miss Collar said during their trip to Miami she bought a wedding ring, exchanged vows with Jefferson and they considered themselves married.

"He said he didn't have time to stop and get married but that we would when we reached Miami."

The ravished body of Miss Dunn was found in a swamp today.

Shortly before dawn, blonde Miss Bolton stumbled into a fire station at Boca Raton.

Between Miami and Palm Beach, she walked, unarmed, along a main highway north of Boca Raton.

Then the sobbing girl led officers to Jefferson's stalled automobile on a lonely beach trail and near it was found the nude body of Miss Dunn. The brunette beauty had been attacked and badly beaten. Her body and throat were deeply stabbed and a single bullet had pierced her head.

Detective Lieutenant E. W. Melchen said Jefferson admitted he abducted the girls and killed Miss Dunn when she cried out against his assaults and "would not do what I told her to."

Near hysterics, Miss Bolton was returned to her Miami home and placed under a physician's care. The pretty radio and night club singer said Jefferson did not molest her although she was kept tied.

Her lips showed bruises.

Murder Charge Filed.
A coroner's jury found Miss Dunn was slain by Jefferson and a murder charge was filed against him.

A curious crowd assembled soon after Jefferson, clad in dark shorts and sports shirt, was lodged in the West Palm Beach jail, but this group melted away without threat. Tonight, however, a second crowd was reported forming and the unshaven prisoner was hurried to another jail, presumably Miami's skyscraper cells.

"There's a crowd gathering downtown and they want to kill this fellow," County Solicitor W. E. Roebuck explained.

Jefferson moodily denied any

Pantry Shelves Full of Ants?

Here's how to get rid of them. First, keep shelves and cupboards free of food particles, sugar, etc. That's what attracts ants. Second, get a can of Bee Brand Insect Powder. Sprinkle it in corners and along the back edges of shelves. Blow it into cracks and crevices, back of and under wall boards. Build a powder barrier between the ants and your food. As they crawl through this powder they will pick up enough killing particles to kill them. Repeat these directions at regular intervals, and your pantry will soon be free of ants.

Bee Brand really kills ants, roaches and other crawling insects quick—yet it's entirely safe to use around the home. Look on the package for Bee Brand Insect Powder—in the red and yellow cans. It's sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or your money back.

NOTE: You can also kill ants and roaches, as well as flies and mosquitoes, with Bee Brand Insect Spray. Read directions on can.

shot at the escapes but none had been hit.

The suspended acting warden, Payne, took the place of A. E. Ginn, Franklin warden, who is ill. Harrison said Payne would be returned to guarding and that he would get another warden.

The penal board yesterday also heard charges of private use of convicts against W. C. Smith, warden of the Wilcox county camp, and exonerated him completely.

CAMP STOPS OVER ON HIS WAY HOME

Keeps Washington Office Open, However.

A. Sidney Camp, representative from the fourth district, stopped in Atlanta yesterday on his way home to Newnan from Washington.

Camp, sworn in during the closing hours of the last session, announced he would keep his Washington office open under Pete Morgan, of LaGrange, his secretary, and Miss Frances Long, of Carrollton. He also plans to open an office in Newnan for the month he intends to spend in the district before returning to Washington.

The new representative fills the unexpired term of the late Emmett Owen, of Griffin. Before his election, he was first assistant to United States Attorney Lawrence S. Camp.

intention to harm the Miami schoolgirls and indicated his willingness to plead guilty to any charges, adding:

"What have I to live for? The sooner it comes the better."

While Miss Dunn's body was returned to Miami for burial, Miss Bolton went into seclusion. Her father, Ernest Bolton, recently underwent a brain operation in Atlanta and was reported in serious condition at his Miami home today.

College Editor's Survey Shows Girls Spend an Average of $40 Less Than Boys in Year.

By LUKE GREENE.

The age-old charge that women are more extravagant than men wasn't meant for the Emory University co-ed.

"Sweet young things" at Emory watch their pennies as closely as a housewife shopping in a department store, while the alleged thrifty men distribute dad's money with considerable abandon.

These facts are revealed in a survey conducted by Joe Hall, senior in journalism next year and editor of the Emory Wheel.

College Opening Near.
With the opening of colleges little more than a month away, mothers and fathers are beginning to take down their pencils and pads and figure a little on what it's going to cost to send son and daughter to school during the next year.

At the outstart Hall admits Emory is not the best school for making comparisons between the school expenses of boys and girls, since there are no girls' dormitories, sororities or clubs.

His survey shows that Emory men spend an average of $700 per year, including tuition, books, fraternity expenses, room and board, laundry, luxuries and incidental spending.

On the other hand, he finds the average co-ed spends only $300 per year for tuition, clothes and incidental campus expenses. Of course, room and board is not included in this figure, since the Emory co-eds do not stay on the campus, but assuming they spent $40 per month on room and board, their total outlay per year would still be only $680 per year, or $40 below the men.

Average Expenses.
At Agnes Scott College, a women's institution, Dr. J. R. McCain said the average yearly expenditure for day students, comparable to the co-eds of Emory, would approximate $400, while the expenses of boarding students run as high as $75.

Hall points out that the most extravagant boy at Emory spends no more than $1,000 per year, while the greatest girl spendthrift gets by with $500. Several male students, he said, spend as little as $500 and co-eds as low as $250.

The Emory editor found a comparative small difference in the expenditure of fraternity and non-fraternity men. This difference, he said, was about $100.

The survey at Emory, however, varies slightly from a similar study made by a national life insurance company among several hundred students at the University of Minnesota.

Sponsors of the insurance survey discovered it was cheaper to send a boy to college than a girl, unless they joined Greek-letter societies. The co-eds averaged $59.70 a month for all expenses outside of tuition; the men's monthly spending averaged $56.54.

GEORGIA EXPORTS SHOW BIG GAIN

June Total Is $1,696,574; $992,272 Last Year.

Exports through the Georgia customs district in June totaled $1,696,574, compared with $992,272 for June a year ago. W. H. Schroder, district manager of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, reported yesterday.

Imports for the month were $665,681, an increase of $214,949 over June, 1938.

For the first six months of the year, exports were $8,536,529 compared with $7,472,476 for the corresponding period of 1938, while imports amounted to $4,339,121, a decline of $1,106,306 below the first six months of last year.

The President's Court "Victory"

In referring to his alleged "victory" over the senate on the supreme court issue, President Roosevelt, to quote from Washington dispatches, made the following assertion: "The country is naturally concerned with the attainment of proper objectives rather than any one of many possible methods proposed for the accomplishment of the end."

In other words, regardless of the methods proposed to accomplish the end; regardless of whether the methods proposed met with the approval of a majority of the people; regardless of whether the President refused to consent to submit the issue to the people in the form of a constitutional amendment for fear of its defeat; regardless of whether the methods were rejected by the congress which represents the people; regardless of whether the methods proposed split his own party asunder; regardless of whether the methods proposed were repudiated by the people when they finally reached them at the polls last fall, the end—according to Mr. Roosevelt's belief and to quote his own words—fully justifies the means.

And the end, in this instance, was the adoption of the rejected principle of appointing men of definitely fixed opinion to the supreme court for no other purpose than to approve legislation yet to be enacted by a supposedly supine congress, men whose minds had been made up in advance on matters to be brought before them by the people of the United States for adjudication.

The principle that "the end justifies the means" is something new—has been recognized as something new and condemned by the people—under the form of government to which they have become accustomed, lived and prospered for a century and a half. And there is now definite enough indication that no change in this form of government is contemplated by these people without their consent.

The President, it seems, is inclined to overlook the fact that he was elected in 1936; that nothing was said, either in the party platform or on the stump during the debates by himself or by other New Deal speakers about his intention to "pack" the supreme court; that another election was held in 1938; that the main discussion during the campaign centered on whether senators who voted against his court "packing" bill should be purged and that he met defeat on that issue.

If a victory was won by flouting the will of the people, by over-riding congress, then it was a victory over the people and over congress, not a victory over the supreme court of the United States. It was a victory for the principle that the end justifies the means; that "proper objectives" for New Deal adoption, to again use the President's words, are objectives already rejected by the people.

Melodrammer!

A touch of the old west, with its "dead or alive" rewards and two-gun desperadoes, is conjured in the nation-wide manhunt centering around the person of Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, classed as a criminal extraordinary, perhaps even of the Phillips Oppenheim school. Two masters of crime-smashing have undertaken to furnish rival and highly dramatic searches for a new No. 1 Public Enemy, although they have dropped that moss-grown appellation. Directing the rival productions are District Attorney Dewey of New York county, who would like to be president, and Attorney General Murphy, the New Deal's avenging angel, who is putting on a show that makes Dewey's gang-busting look like very small potatoes indeed. In the meantime, Lepke keeps to his lair, no doubt faintly amused at the hue and cry.

But one can be sure the show will be a publicity man's paradise, for already it has gone forth that a federal grand jury is assembling data from witnesses brought clear across the continent just to talk turkey in a secret chamber provided for this jury. The secret chamber is, of course, connected by passageway to the offices of the Department of Justice in New York. Melodrammer! A plot the pulp magazine authors will glory in. Then, too, in the best tradition, there is being demolished an "underground railroad" of crime across the nation. Harriet Brecher Stowe was born a hundred years too soon. She'd have loved it!

It may be recounted that basically the excitement all centers around a search for another cheap crook in the Capone tradition. His crimes are serious, and punishment eventually will be levied. But the political by-play that is making it a publicity saturnalia should be discounted completely.

Record That Counts

Atlanta has shown that traffic deaths can be prevented by the exercise of reasonable caution, and that carelessness or heedlessness on the part of motorists or pedestrians are responsible for much of the enormous toll that heretofore has marked the measure of that irresponsibility. This morning, Atlanta entered its seventy-sixth day without an auto death. More than two months have passed since a life has been lost on the city streets. It is a record of which all Atlantans, and all who use the city's streets, should be proud.

This record, however, has been set during a period in which the incidence of accidents customarily is low and, as with all records, must someday be broken, tragically and uselessly. So that it is not particularly the building of a record of this type over a period of months that really counts, but the maintenance of vigilance that saves many lives over the period of a year. The record is of little value if, after it has been broken, there follows a number of automobile deaths which brings the mark up to that of any previous year. The true value of careful driving is the result over the period of a year.

It should be remembered that often the greater number of fatal accidents come in the fall months, or from the Labor Day week end to the end of the year. It is then truly extraordinary care must be taken. It is then enforcement must be strict, vigilance must be keenest, speed be even more kept under control.

The traffic record of deathless days is remarkable. It is to be hoped it will rise beyond 100 days. But if it should not, if carelessness on one hand or the other brings it to a close, then it should be the determination of every Atlantian that even greater attention be paid to reducing the toll for the remainder of the year, far below that of other years. In that will rest the true measure of the safety lesson taught during the past several years.

Somewhat Exaggerated

Charley Williams, negro laborer, is alive and working in Savannah. He is, by all accounts, happy and carefree. And, certainly, in good health.

The importance of Charley Williams' condition of life is found in the fact that he was listed, in the semi-annual Tuskegee report on lynchings, as having been the victim of a mob of white lynchers, in Screven county, Georgia, early last March.

This alleged outrage was the only black mark against Georgia, in this category, for the half year. Now the report has been proved false. It leaves the state record stainless for the six-month period. And it reduces the number of lynchings in the south, for that same period, to three, instead of the announced four.

Three is a disgrace, of course. It is a thing to bring shame to any decent person to hear of a lynching, anywhere, anytime. But, certainly, three is, by that much, better than four.

When Charley Williams was found, alive and happy, despite the report of his death by mob violence, he explained his silence by saying, "I heard I was lynched but didn't pay any attention to it 'cause I knew I was living."

Which, it must be conceded, was perfectly sound logic. However, whether Charley realizes it or not, the entire state of Georgia, the entire south and the entire nation is gratified to discover that he still "knows he is living," and that the erroneous lynching report has been utterly refuted and branded as an undeserved slur on the fair name of Georgia.

Editorial of the Day

PROPERTY AND PEOPLE
(From The Lafayette (La.) Daily Advertiser.)

Talking about his new connection with the New York Post, the cartoonist Rollin H. Kirby brought out the old shams about and human rights above property rights. It's old and worn, but it's still his guiding idea, Mr. Kirby said.

It is a fine-sounding principle, and nearly everyone who hears it for the first time is impressed. When it comes to precise definition, though, the question is a more difficult one to decide.

A constant threat to freedom is the bitter fact that all such human rights as civil liberties and other precious things of that kind, won down through the centuries, are of less importance to a starving man than a sandwich. And a sandwich is property. A man's right to a certain amount of property in the way of food, shelter, clothing and medicine is more important to him than these other rights are. In many countries people are given the choice every day of dying as free individuals and existing as serfs of a sort. Nearly all of those forced to this frightful choice are existing and hoping.

Then we come to the individual's right to earn a livelihood, to own a place to live, and to save the products of his toil in some exchangeable form. These are important human rights, but now we have accepted a man's right to his tools and to money, stocks and bonds.

When we hear of a new crusade to improve human rights at the expense of property rights we should look into it and we will almost certainly find that it is a plan to improve A's property and human rights at the expense of B's property and human rights. We are doing things like that, in one way or another, all the time. B expects to pay taxes and make gifts and in general to do a good deal of sharing. As time goes on, he suspects, he will have to contribute more and more, but he is not anxious to hasten the process. A would like to speed it up, unless he has a chance to become a B, in which case he would like to slow it down, too.

An enjoyable existence demands a certain measure of human rights and of property rights for everyone. Treating the two as different and antagonistic things does not clear up any questions.

THE CAPITAL PARADE FAIR ENOUGH

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

DISCOURAGING STATE HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 9.—For lovers of moderation, Pennsylvania is a discouraging state. It used to be the Republicans' basic, gilded political asset. It was briefly lost to them in the years of the New Deal's glory. It was reconquered last November, with loud jubilation. And the only result seems to be another proof of the old rule, that there is no pausing place between the frying pan and the fire.

The short-lived Democratic regime was shamelessly inept, flagrantly political, and meekly subservient to big labor. If you come here to see how the Republicans are doing, you will find that they are also inept and political, and meekly subservient to big business. It is hard to see what the average Pennsylvanian has gained by the exchange, and if the local wince is right, the average Pennsylvanian is beginning to wonder.

THE RECORD If the late Bill Vare could revisit the scenes of his earthly triumphs, he would find himself quite at home in Harrisburg. His tradition is being appropriately carried on by Governor Arthur James, a bumbling, ostentatiously homespun former ornament of the Vare machine, who once offered to retire from a contest for a judgeship if the big boss, in his wisdom, gave the word. James came into office promising to balance Pennsylvania's budget, purge its administration of politics, and make it a paradise for industry. These promises have been fulfilled as follows:

(1) An ostensible budget balance has been achieved, chiefly by the simple expedient of not appropriating the funds needed for relief. Relief administration has been returned to the counties, where it gives the courthouse boys a fine chance to show their talent for good work. Relief has also been subjected to a set of rules not unlike the Elizabethan poor laws. Pennies have been pinched for other social services, and some cuts have been made in the state bureaucracy. But the general prediction is that, before long, deficiency relief appropriations will knock the James budget galley-west.

(2) The state administration has been purged of politics by substituting Republican for Democratic politicians in state jobs. The system of patronage distribution perfected by Pennsylvania's fallen Democratic satrap, Joe Guffey, has been efficiently followed. Under James Torrance, manager of the James campaign and chairman of the Republican state committee, all jobs have been portioned out by counties, according to each county vote for James. The James faithful must have the usual indentments from James' county leaders, must clear through the state committee, and may then apply to the Governor's personnel office. If their credentials are correct, they are then rewarded. Democratic hold-overs are now so rare in Harrisburg that no decent Republican eye need be offended.

(3) The state has been made a paradise for industry by disembodying the state workmen's compensation act and the state labor relations act. The amendments to the workmen's compensation act, to give you an idea, are said to have been written by the potentates of the soft-collar industry. In any case, James and his friends seem to have gone almost as far in attacking labor as their predecessors did in attacking the employers.

NO SEARCH FOR GOLDEN MEAN Such are the main points

ord. It can be seen that there has been a great search for the golden mean, between the excesses of the Democrats and the persistent moss-backery which lost Pennsylvania to the Republicans in the first instance.

Even more astounding is the return of the old-fashioned Pennsylvania Republican atmosphere. To be sure no one has tried to reproduce the brutal but rather magnificent style of the great Boies Penrose, with his pocket copies of the Latin poets, his cheerful cynicism, and his deathbed dictation of a presidential nomination. But Joe Grundy, the forgotten tariff lobbyist, has emerged from the shadows to do his part in running the legislature through his henchman, John M. Flynn, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association. Governor James is entirely surrounded by his big business backers, and their thinking permeates his policy. The faces are different but the picture is the same. The ancient alliance between politics and big business has been calmly and openly re-established, as though this were the second Grant instead of the second Roosevelt administration.

Certainly what the Republicans are now doing in Pennsylvania could not be worse than what the Democrats did. Possibly Pennsylvanians like to take their politics pretty raw, and would not enjoy a regime of moderation. From the standpoint of the Republican party in the nation, however, the doings in Pennsylvania, the great reconquered state, are pretty sad.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

*They sit around a table
And solemnly discuss
Why some folks act so crazy-like,
Why others act like us?*

*They are crazy, too, because—
The reason's plain as pie—
The whole world crazy is, my dear,
Save, maybe, you and I.*

Wonder If We'll See the Fleet?

It will be a week from next Tuesday, on August 22, when friend wife and I stand at the rail of the Aquitania as she steams up the English channel, calls at Cherbourg and then carries us to our destination port, Southampton, from whence we'll take train for London and Liverpool and the old home.

And we've been reading lately of fall maneuverings of the British fleet, of the calling of naval reservists to the colors and to active service, and we're wondering if we'll see any of His Majesty's battleships steaming up the channel? It will be quite a sight, if we do.

Some overly-solicitous friends have wondered whether the old man, not poking ourselves into trouble by visiting England at this time. These nervous souls seem to think Hitler's bombing planes may come roaring over old England at any moment, probably during the brief two weeks while the Japs are there as targets.

I don't think there is any danger. Personally, my impression of Hitler is that he isn't going to do anything which might rebound to the woe of his own people, or which might cause them to look on him as a threat and bluff, and profit thereby, he will. But that's all. And you must remember that, in some of his requests, there is considerable logic at that.

But, If He Does—

However, should Der Fuehrer choose to come a-bombing while we are there, what of it? I wouldn't miss the trip, and the chance to see my family, my father and mother, and to introduce my wife to them, for the first time, for all the Adolfs in Europe. Remember, too, that if the bombs fall close but don't hit, it will provide some excellent copy for future Silhouettes.

I really believe the general public on this side of the Atlantic gives greater credence to rumors of impending warfare than do the people of Britain and of Europe. Belief that war is just around the corner does something to the emotion and is apt to become a recurrent habit. Which many of us, over here, seem to be acquiring. Whereas a calmer and more factual view of the situation is taken on the other side. They don't believe war is coming tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock. And, if it does, what of it? Fate decides, anyway. All we can do, old fellow, is just carry on. So, no matter what the rumors, the wife and I are booked to sail for Southampton, next week, and we'll just carry on and trust to enjoy ourselves, tremendously.

The Reaction.*

One of my personal anticipations for this trip, is to observe the reaction of the wife to all the English accent she's going to hear around her. As soon as we board the Aquitania, the English accents among the stewards and stewardesses will be so thick you could cut 'em. I hope she'll understand their language. And they're a lot of them, realizing the community responsibility or sectional obligation, if you will, she's been practicing up on the "slow, southern drawl" that will be expected of her, for weeks.

Last time I crossed, on the Franconia, the talk of the stewards so charmed I used to lurk, unseen, round the corners of the companionways, just to hear 'em talking together.

And, after I'd been home for a couple of days, one of my brothers remarked that he'd been listening carefully to my talk and could report that he had acquired two words of the American language.

Asked what they were, he said one was "Uh huh," with a rising inflection, meaning "yes," and the other was "Uh uh," with a falling inflection, meaning "no."

I don't think he was quite right, but it demonstrated a worthy determination to conquer a foreign tongue, on his part, don't you think?

*Twenty-five

From the news columns of Tuesday, August 11, 1914:
"Diplomatic relations between France and Austria have been broken and the ambassadors have been recalled. A French foreign office statement says the initiative was taken by France because Austrian troops were aiding the Germans."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Sunday, August 11, 1889:

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

Flagrant New York, Aug. 10.—I would like to call the attention of the labor board, the Civil Liberties Union and the Communist Unioners who infest the American labor movement to a flagrant violation of political and religious freedom by an employer. This employer discriminates against Americans on political and religious grounds, excluding from employment all persons who are not members of a certain political party. He also requires that those who do qualify under these coercive conditions contribute a portion of their earnings to the party funds. This latter result is accomplished by an indirect and evasive method, the catch being that the employees must belong to the party unless they contribute and can't get or keep jobs if they don't belong to the party. That is a mere dodge, however, and I am sure that the labor relations board would give the employer a much needed lesson in law and probably send someone to prison if the employer were Republic Steel and the party were the Republican party.

But the employer is a Communist publication, and the party to which the employees must belong and contribute is the Communist party, and that seems to make the difference, although I don't see why it should or why a Communist publication has any more right to police the politics of its employees than William Randolph Hearst, who doesn't.

For contrast, let us assume that Mr. Tom Girdler, the well-known horrible example, has decreed that all of his employees must join the Republican party and contribute a portion of their pay, only a graduated, income tax basis, to the party's chest. He also requires that they attend all party meetings, take a personal part in all party demonstrations and refrain from voting or uttering remarks derogatory to the party's leader or contrary to the Republican platform or line. For violation of any of these requirements they may be dismissed from the party and consequently from their jobs.

Rank To remain parallel to the case of the Communist publication we must assume also that the Republican party has a corps of spies spread around to report conversational deviations from the platform or line, and that the expression of a belief in God is not merely a deviation but rank heresy, punishable by dismissal from the party and from the job.

We assume that for the purpose of exposing Mr. Girdler takes on, provisionally, an occasional employee who is not an openly avowed member but a Republican fellow-traveler or promising probationer. But he selects such individuals with great care, lest, somehow, a Democrat, Communist or New Dealer slip into his industrial household. The presence of these few individuals enables him to say, with a faint color of truth but without its substance, as anyone can see, that party membership is not 100 per cent compulsory.

So there is a great explosion against Mr. Girdler, who, to observe the parallel further, sets up two defenses. First, he says he doesn't police the politics of his employees, or demand that they secure God. He says that, anyway, his fellow-travelers and probationary Republicans are living disproof. That defense is tossed out right away, however, as a dirty Republican subterfuge. Mr. Girdler then says, if it comes to that, he has right to do as he is alleged to have done because he wants a harmonious plant in which everybody holds the same beliefs and all, therefore, work agreeably together.

Too Far To this the examiner Carried replies that employees are free men and women with human rights, including that of conscience and that they have to harmonize. All they have to do is a certain minimum of work for established rates of pay. They can wear party button of groups opposed to the Republican party, denounce Landon, Hoover and Hamilton if they want to, and go to church every night in the week and all day Sunday. The examiner gives him a terrible going-over, and I think, gets him put away in Jail, and it is agreed that it serves Mr. Girdler damn well right, because who does he think he is?

But that is carrying the parallel a couple of steps too far. There is no explosion against the Communist publication, nobody is cited or prosecuted, and a man or woman still must belong and contribute to harmonize. The party and repudiate God to get a job in the first place and keep it thereafter.

Slaps a Lion in Face. Ralph Baltzley, of Oklahoma, City, slapped a wild New Mexico mountain lion in the face and lived to tell the tale.

He caught such a nice mess of trout near Santa Fe that he placed them carefully by his out-of-doors bed that night to keep his dog, Lumpf, from getting them.

Toward dawn he was partly aroused from slumber by a commotion near his head and drowsily reached over to cuff Lumpf, whom he believed was at the fish. "The next thing I knew something that felt like a hot poker was searing my face," said Baltzley. "It stopped for the briefest moment, and then began all over again, only more searing this time."

Baltzley was fully aroused then and shot his flashlight beam toward the fish. The beam struck a mountain lion, six feet long, in the face and made his eyes blaze. Just then Baltzley's son arrived and threw a hand axe that struck the lion and caused him to flee.

Baltzley, a YMCA secretary, nursed a badly lacerated face.

Rears Injured Fawn. In Theopolis, Ont., Charlie Stevenson found a motherless fawn with an injured leg near here, fixed the leg, and nursed it to strength. No mother has come to seek it, so Charlie has a new pet.

FARM AND HOME WEEK

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 10.—This morning I felt better about things.

At the conclusion of the morning meeting of the 4-H Club council in session here this week, 500 boys and girls of Georgia stood and repeated their pledge:

"I pledge my head to clearer thinking,
My heart to greater loyalty,
My hands to larger service,
And my health to better living
For my club, my community, and my country."

They meant it. I believe they will so pledge their heads to clearer thinking that when they are old enough to vote they will laugh at the type politicians for whom we adults have gone to the polls and voted. I do not believe they will listen to promises or be swayed so much by the prejudices of clever demagogues. They are farm boys and girls. They know that the 50 years politicians have promised to do things for the farmer and have not. They know that labor and business selfishly have protected their interests to the exclusion of the farmer. I think they may know all this.

They pledge to loyalty. They met near where Bob Toombs, little "Alec" Stephens, Henry Grady and other great Georgians who loved their state and served it with no self-seeking interests, went to school. They will read and know that the array of pygmy statesmen who have followed those men, have done us no good. They pledge their loyalty and the best efforts of their minds to Georgia.

They pledge the work of their hands and their health to the state. They mean it. I hope they are a little angry about the adult people in Georgia. The late Colonel Jack Spaulding, one of Georgia's greatest minds, used to say that the government of any state was the reflection of the people. That is true. That is why I think a new era may be dawning. By clocking an attentive ear I think I can hear, riding through the years ahead, the mocking laughter which will greet the fawning, shouting self-seekers who may seek their vote. I hope so, anyhow. And looking at their faces one may hope.

TO KNOW GEORGIA It is impossible to know Georgia by sitting at a desk in a city or by going off "to the country" for a week end. Here in Athens this week is a picture of the real Georgia.

Here are 500 of the young men and women who vitally are interested in Georgia, and here too are many of the farm women of the state. Wives of tenants and wives of operators, they sit down in meetings and talk over their problems.

Look at their hands. They are beautiful hands. They do not have long, lacquered nails. They have not been rubbed and kept at night in cream-soaked gloves. They are the hands which have the character of work. They do not flutter helplessly before a stove, a broom, a tub or a baby to be washed. Many of them have known drudgery. Their faces tell the same story.

Rural electrification is coming to lighten some of the load of drudgery. But always they must have skilled hands and hands of character. Always they will know how to work. These women, too, are thinking. They, too, are interested in their state and in its problems. They are, as some of the drudgery lifts, seeking to form organizations which will create markets, which will build their communities into live, interesting communities. The farm women are becoming articulate. Their voice is coming to be heard. For years now we have heard the voices of women's clubs, of women's auxiliaries.

Now, faintly but unmistakably, the voice of the farm woman is to be heard. It will speak louder as they come to know they too have a part in the world and in the state. They, too, will come to know they are as important, and perhaps more important, than any other single group in the state.

THE PROSPECT OF ANGER Perhaps, in time, they too will become angry and will look at each candidate, coldly and impersonally, stopping their ears to platitudes and promises and say, "If these we elect mirror our minds and our characters, let us be careful and be sure. Will this man enable us in the rural areas to have medical care? Will he see that our children receive the education fitted to their needs in our high schools, the university of the common man? Will he give us government of, for, and by the people?"

One can hope, they too, become angry. I saw the flag flying from a pole in the city. I looked at it and thought of the boys and girls and the farm women, and the flag looked brighter. Its silk is made more beautiful by those who make homes, who raise children, who do an honest creative work, than it is by soldiers who carry it to victory in a battle. These people will save us or let us die. I have seen the boys and girls stand and pledge their minds, their hearts, their hands and their health to the job. I think they will do what we have failed, thus far, to do.

Age and Ease Slow Up the Champ, and Some Eager Young Climber Takes Him

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

"To him that hath shall be given" was spoken of spiritual things, not of riches and power and glory. To the hungry who stand outside looking in at the feast, it also seems true of material things; for nothing succeeds like success, and we give banquets only for the winners who no longer need them. The world pays court to the rich and showers gifts on the powerful.

It is true, also, that a taste of power develops an appetite for power, and the ambitious who are given authority quickly usurp more and more, if they can, until they reign without opposition or hindrance.

But all of this is temporary, like the flowering of a plant, and the picture it presents is true only for a day. Time and history to a different story, change is the law of the universe and those who are high are doomed by their own nature to be brought low.

The explanation is the classic one that a man doesn't keep running after he has caught the streetcar. Getting is more fun than keeping, and there is no incentive to keep in training after the big game is won.

History is an endless repetition of the same old story. A group or a race develops ability and industry and becomes prosperous. Then it relaxes to enjoy its advantages and becomes soft and fat and careless. Soon another race or group, made hard and lean by struggle and privation, having everything to gain and nothing to lose, proclaims itself the rightful heir to civilization and offers battle for supremacy. And whether the outcome is determined by swords or cunning or industry or knowledge, soon or late the newcomers win.

Their winning is ordained by the nature of things, for they are inspired by hungry desire and their opponents only by contented possession. Fighting is their whole concern; to their opponents it is only a nuisance. They have something to fight for; their opponents have only something to fight against.

Which tries harder, the poor boy who has everything to win or the rich boy who is content with what he has? The minority race that has everything to gain, or the majority race that inherits control without trying?

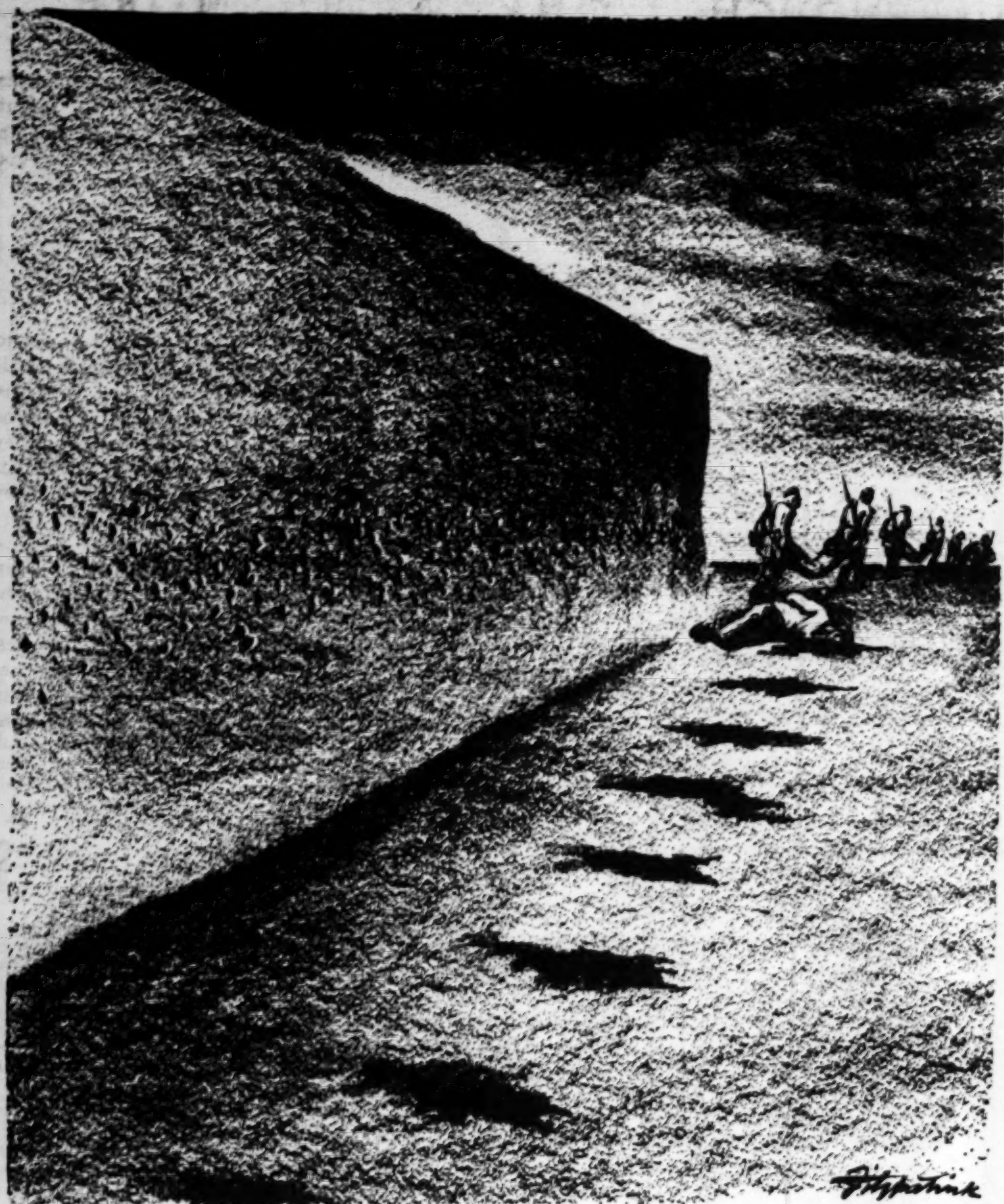

Nature seems to keep opportunity in circulation by softening those who have had their share. And to him that hath not is given the enthusiasm and the grim persistence that enable him to take.

Full Text of Roosevelt Message To Young Democrats Convention

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's message to the Young Democrats of America, read to the Young Democrats' convention by Maner.

Please convey my greetings to the convention.

Never was there a more timely gathering than that of young Democrats at Pittsburgh. Recent events have demonstrated the necessity of a re-statement and a reaffirmation of Democratic principles, and no group can undertake this mission as well as the young men and young women of our party.

STEADY CONFLICT WITH FORCES OF REACTION

From the beginning, democracy has meant progress and its battle ever since Jefferson's time has been a steady conflict with the forces of reaction and special favors. Every time the policies involving greater opportunities for the common man have triumphed, our political enemies have sought to minimize those policies and to neutralize the decisions of the people. Today is no exception to that classical course of events.

Uniformly the party of Nicholas Biddle of Jackson's time, of Quay and Hanna of the Cleveland era and of the Theodore Roosevelt period, has bowed to the progressive wing to the extent of pretending accord with the objectives of the progressive administrations but has found fault with the methods requisite for putting and keeping these principles at work.

Uniformly have they appealed to such elements in our own party as dreaded the departure from ancient habits or were responsive to the powerful agencies that financed and controlled local politics.

HEREDITARY LOYALTIES UNDERMINED BY FOES

Just as there are progressives in the Republican ranks so there are reactionaries in our own party. Political affiliation is often the child of hereditary principles, begotten in the first instance of issues of terrific importance in the beginning but which have no more significance at present than the inflated controversy of a century and a half ago as to whether the capital of the United States should be at Washington or somewhere on the Susquehanna river.

Always has it been the aim of the enemies of liberalism to seek to attach to themselves such members of our party. Sometimes they have succeeded; sometimes they have failed.

When they have succeeded they have not infrequently been successful in their efforts to supplant a Democratic administration with a Republican administration. Such happenings, though they have brought dismay for a period, have not sufficed to stop the general and inevitable movement to make our country a better country for all of us rather than to make it a lush pasture for the seekers and holders of privilege.

PROGRESSIVE MARK LEFT BY DEMOCRATS

Every Democratic administration has left a progressive mark on our own history and has influenced world progress as well. But when it has been succeeded by a typically Republican administration, progress has slipped backwards—sometimes a few feet and often many miles.

It has been said that a great many voters today want us as a nation to stop, look and listen. What they fail to understand is that nations cannot stand still because by the very act of standing still, the rest of the procession, moving forward, inevitably leaves them in the rear. Therefore, their desire to stand still actually means moving backward in relation to the rest of the world.

Republican and Democratic reactionaries want to undo what we have accomplished in these last few years and return to the unrestricted individualism of the previous century.

Republican and Democratic conservatives admit that all of our recent policies are not wrong and that many of them should be retained—but their eyes are on the present; they give no thought for the future and thus, without meaning to, are failing to solve even current social and economic problems by declining to consider the needs of tomorrow.

Radicals of all kinds have some use to humanity because they have at least the imagination to think up many kinds of answers to problems, even though their answers are wholly impracticable of fulfillment in the immediate future.

WHY HE CALLS HIMSELF A LIBERAL

Liberalism, on the other hand, are those who, unlike the radicals who want to tear up everything by the roots and plant new and untried seeds, desire to use the existing plants of civilization, to select the best of them, to water them and make them grow—not only for the present use of mankind, but also for the use of generations to come.

That is why I call myself a liberal, and that is why, even if we are by the modern contraption of polls of public opinion, an overwhelming majority of young men and women throughout the United States are on the liberal side of things.

In considering the present and the future of American politics or policies, you have the right and the duty to say to those who want to stand still—"Have you no program other than standing still? We are not satisfied if you tell us glibly that you believe in taking care of old people, that you want the young people to have jobs, that you want everybody to have a job, that you believe in a fairer distribution of wealth—we insist in addition that you give us specifications of how you would do it if you were in power."

Do not let the reactionaries and the conservatives get away with fine phrases. Pin them down and make them tell you just how they would do it.

THREATENS "SIT DOWN" IF CONSERVATIVES WIN

The Democratic party will fail if it goes conservative next year, or if it is led by people who can offer naught but fine phrases. Last winter, in speaking at the Jackson Day dinner, I referred to the sad state the country would be in if it had to choose between a Democratic tweedle dum and a Republican tweedle dee.

I want to amend that simile, so let me put it this way: The Democratic party will not survive as an effective force in the nation if the voters have to choose between a Republican tweedle dum and a Democratic tweedle dummer.

If we nominate conservative candidates, or lip-service candidates, on a straddling platform, I personally, for my own self respect and because of my long service to and belief in liberal democracy, will find it impossible to have any active part in such an unfortunate suicide of the old Democratic party.

WARNS YOUTH TO KEEP TORIES OUT OF CONTROL

I do not anticipate that any such event will take place, for I believe that the convention will see the political wisdom, as well as the national wisdom, of giving to the voters of the United States an opportunity to maintain the practice and the policy of moving forward with a liberal and humanitarian program.

A large part of the responsibility for such a choice of fundamental policies lies in the hands and in the heads of the younger men and women of the nation. Be vigilant to keep Tories from controlling your own ranks—just as vigilant as you will be to keep Tory Republicans from controlling your own nation.

We who have borne the heat and burden of the day salute you—you who are about to live.

Very sincerely yours,

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

PRESIDENT WARNS OF 'SIT-DOWN' IN '40

day meeting in spacious Duquesne garden after much preliminary bickering among factions over the organization presidency and following an interview by Senator Claude Pepper, (Democrat, Florida), that "Republicans and turn-coat Democrats have deliberately sent their spies here to 'disrupt' the convention."

Former Representative John J. O'Connor, of New York, Roosevelt "victim" last year, countered by saying the New Deal had representatives here of Thomas G. Corcoran, young administration lawyer, to see that everything "goes well for Roosevelt."

Homer Mat Adams, 28-year-old Illinois state official, appeared to have the edge in the race for organization president, to be named Saturday. Pat Beacom, Huntington, W. Va., another candidate, withdrew during the day in the interest of "harmony."

Reactionaries Lashed Mr. Roosevelt struck out at "Republican and Democratic reactionaries" who "want to undo what we have accomplished in these last few years and return to the unrestricted individualism of the previous century."

The convention was more than a hour late in convening. Even then the hall was only half-filled and delegates, carrying banners and headed by bands, streamed in while opening speeches were being delivered.

As in the senior party conventions, delegations had state standards marking their places. Placards read: "Young democracy backs New Deal 100 per cent." "To victory in 1940 with the New Deal."

New Dealers on Platform.

On the speaker's platform sat Charles Michelson, veteran publicity chief of the Democratic National Committee; Senator Guffey, Democrat, Pennsylvania, and other New Dealers.

Maner was interrupted several times by cheers and applause as he read the Roosevelt message.

In a plea for harmony, the young Alabamian declared: "I should be the last among you to say that since 1933 the Democratic administration has been consistently right" and asked:

"What other human being in this republic could have made a better score of accuracy in those seven stormy, gulling years than the Equine of Hyde Park?"

'How Dry I Am' Sung By Wet Kentuckians

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 10.—(AP)

Some of Kentucky's delegates to the Young Democrats' national convention didn't get a chance today to quench their thirst with 30 gallons of choice whisky they brought to the convention.

The liquor stayed in the railroad station because Liquor Board Supervisor Carl Newell warned them to pay Pennsylvania's whisky tax or "take it back to Kentucky."

Newell said the delegates, "like any honest person would," informed him they were bringing in the liquor and he told them they had to pay the taxes of $37.50.

all discerning men that as we approach the convention of 1940 we are badly divided. Unless wise men and women intervene and compose the warring factions, we shall go into the next great battle, which will be with the forces of reaction and privilege, crippled and unprepared.

"Whatever may be our differences of opinion, let us not be deceived as to the fundamental verities at issue; if the New Deal, as some worthy and sincere citizens fear, has veered too far to the left upon occasion, let us understand now that if the brilliant performances of the last seven years are repudiated the forces that accomplished this will be in a mood to veer so far to the right that four years hence a madcap leader, blowing his trumpet from a point on the left, will rally millions of desperate men to his flag."

ARMY PLACES BIG ORDER FOR PLANES

Largest Since War; $85,978,000 To Be Spent.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(AP)

The army placed its largest aircraft orders since the World War today, asking 11 plants to supply it with an undisclosed number of bombers, new type interceptor pursuit planes, training craft and engines, costing altogether $85,978,000.

While the named of planes involved was not divulged, military quarters believed it was more than 1,500. Equipment to be provided by the government will increase their cost well beyond $100,000,000, the War Department said.

GOOD MORNING By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT.

Mayor William B. Hartsfield, Chief M. A. Hornsby, Captain Jack Malcom, the entire police department, the press, and the people of Atlanta, are to be congratulated upon a great achievement in the very successful effort to make this a safer city for those who live here and for all who come as visitors. This is written, on Monday, August 7, and The Constitution reminds us on the front page this morning that this is the 71st day in Atlanta without a death from automobile accidents, adding the appeal that we co-operate in making it 100 days without a death.

When the mayor took the lead some months ago in setting a speed limit of 25 miles per hour within city limits, supported by Chief Hornsby, Captain Malcom and our fine police department, many thought that it was too much to expect people to slow down to such a speed limit—that it would last a few days, and everybody would return to the idea of driving as fast as we wanted to.

But the mayor warned us in the press and on the radio that the time had come to stop this business of killing folks by unreasonable speeding. I wondered how I would ever manage to drive 25 miles an hour. But I did, and now I find it just as natural to drive 25 miles an hour as I used to find it to drive 40 miles an hour.

The police and recorders soon convinced the public that there was no monkey business about this 25-mile-an-hour law. And people very quickly adjusted themselves when they discover that a law is going to be enforced. It only serves to indicate what would happen in our country if every law was enforced as rigidly as this law has been enforced. I haven't heard a criticism of the new speed limit in weeks. We have been fully convinced that it was for the good of all. Every morning and afternoon, our people look with thanksgiving at the record in our Atlanta papers—a record which proves that life has been made safer in our city. Not only have we witnessed 71 days without a fatality, but I dare say we are all enjoying better health because of the reduction in nervous tension.

Oklahoma scientists are watching test plantings of medicinal herbs, to see whether they can be grown profitably in the state.

Six New Films Offer Real Variety For Atlanta Movie-Goers This Week

'Bachelor Mother' at Fox; 'Four Feathers' at Grand; 'Blondie' at Rialto; 'Five Came Back' at Capitol, and 'Hotel for Women' at Paramount.

By Lee Rogers.
Motion Picture Editor.

Six new films are on exhibit in the city this week and the theater managers tell us they are all above the average for summer movie entertainment.

Ginger Rogers, always a favorite, gets a new leading man, English David Niven, in "Bachelor Mother" at the Fox. Adventure in the Sudan as an Englishman seeks to reclaim his honor is the basis for the story of "Four Feathers" which the Grand is playing.

Third in the "Blondie" series is "Blondie Takes a Vacation" which finds the original Bumstead family back together as comic as ever at the Rialto, and the Capitol is presenting an adventure film called "Five Came Back" which stars Chester Morris, Lucille Ball, Wendy Barrie, John Carradine and C. Aubrey Smith.

"Hotel for Women" is the offering at the Paramount, and the Rhodes has a first run picture in their presentation, "Stronger Than Desire," a film of blackmail, love and murder. Walter Pidgeon and Virginia Bruce drew the star roles.

Loew's

Alexander Korda's most ambitious film undertaking, "Four Feathers," opens at Loew's today. The producer of "Drums" has spent $2,000,000 on the technicolor version of the famous A. E. W. Mason novel.

Directed by Zoltan Korda and adapted by R. C. Sherriff, "Four Feathers" tells the tale of a young officer, of a fine military family resigns from his regiment on the eve of the troops' departure for the Sudan under Lord Kitchner to revenge the death of England's hero, General Gordon. His friends and fellow officers each send him a white feather, the traditional badge of cowardice. His fiancée adds a fourth.

The quitter sails for the East, has himself branded as a Sengeli, a member of an enslaved tribe of mutes, and follows the troops throughout the campaign. Courageously he saves each of his erstwhile friends and hands them back their feathers. Honored and reinstated he returns to England, home and happiness.

Most of "Four Feathers" was filmed in the Sudan on the original sites of Kitchner's campaign. In the large cast June Duprez, Korda's latest discovery, whom he states is destined to be another Merle Oberon; Ralph Richardson, who became a favorite with American audiences in "The Citadel," Aubrey Smith and John Clements in the heroic role of Faversham.

Rhodes

Blackmail and murder, family life and romance mingle with clever detective work in "Stronger Than Desire," the new society melodrama with Virginia Bruce and Walter Pidgeon reunited for the first time since "Society Lawyer." It starts today at the Rhodes theater.

Pidgeon and Miss Bruce play a lawyer and wife, happily married and parents of a child. The wife becomes suspicious of her husband and engages in a flirtation with a man who turns out to be a blackmailer. She is immersed in a murder mystery until, by a clever twist of evidence in a dramatic court climax, Pidgeon rescues his wife and uncovers the real slayer.

Dramatic highlights include Miss Bruce's "confession" in court, the finding of a photographic clue in a reflection in the eye of a portrait of the murder victim, the amazing defense speech, and the heroine's encounter with the blackmailer. The comedy highlight is a sound spanking administered to Rita Johnson, playing a spoiled heiress, by Pidgeon. Ann Dvorak plays the wife of the dead man, and Richard Lane the investigator who, working with Pidgeon, solves the mystery. Little Ann Todd, who scored as the child in "Zaza," plays the small daughter of the hero and heroine, and Lee Bowman enacts the blackmailer.

Capitol

A unique cross-section of life among 11 oddly assorted people stranded in the middle of a vast Brazilian jungle after their transport plane is forced down is revealed in the new picture "Five Came Back," which opens a week's engagement at the Capitol theater Sunday.

The unusually large all-star cast includes Chester Morris, Lucille Ball, Wendy Barrie, John Carradine, Allen Jenkins, Joseph Calleia, C. Aubrey Smith, Kent Taylor and Patric Knowles.

The 11 ill-fated people include a pilot, his co-pilot, a runaway heiress, a gold-digger, a private detective, a gangster, an anarchist killer, a botanist and his wife, a millionaire and the tiny son of a murdered public enemy. Of this group only five are enabled to return to civilization in the crippled plane. How these five are determined constitutes one of the most powerful dramatic crises ever filmed. Added features on the same program include "You're Next To Closing," a vaudeville screen subject; "Good Neighbors," a trip to South America with Lowell Thomas and the world's latest news events.

Fox

Paired for the first time, Ginger Rogers and David Niven are others in assisting parts.

This picture opens with Miss Rogers trying to convince the world that she is not the mother of the baby whom she finds on the steps of an orphan's home. The situation that develops interferences with her job as a salesgirl in a big department store owned by Niven's father. Niven attempts to force Ginger into keeping the baby by threatening to discharge her, incurs the jealousy of Niven's self-appointed boy friend who misinforms Niven's father that his son is the father of the baby.

Paramount

Elsa Maxwell's "Hotel for Women," the Cosmopolitan production for Twentieth Century-Fox, which tells the gay, exciting story of a world of girls on their own, opens today at the Paramount theater.

Elsa, who has been everywhere, seen everything and been confident to society debs and chorus girls, gives these smart, beautiful young things a new slant on life. She believes in taking the light things seriously and the serious things lightly—and she teaches them to do the same.

Production Chief Darryl F. Zanuck selected lovely Linda Darnell to make her screen debut in a leading feminine role with a cast which includes and features Ann Southern, James Ellison, Jean Rogers, Lynn Bari, June Gale, Joyce Compton, Elsa herself, John Halliday, Katherine Aldridge, Alan Dinehart and Sidney Blackmer. Gregory Ratoff directed.

The March of Time entitled "The Movies March On," deals with the history of the movies from the time they were begun until today. Oldsters will possibly remember such great epics as "The Great Train Robbery," "The New York Hat," "The Fugitive," "Tillie's Punctured Romance," "A Night Out," D. W. Griffith's famed "Birth of a Nation," "Thais."

Rialto

The third in a series of "Blondie" comedies is the feature attraction at the Rialto theater for the week which begins Friday.

This time the Chic Young comic strip characters do their stuff in a plot titled "Blondie Takes a Vacation," but most audiences will undoubtedly add "And how!" when they see it.

Penny Singleton is again Blondie, with Arthur Lake as Dagwood, Larry Sims as Baby Dumpling and Daisy the Dog as herself. The supporting cast includes such well known players as Donald Meek, Thomas W. Ross, Donald MacBride and Elizabeth Dunne. The director is again

Bill Leaves Manon, Nina Together And Goes Out to Find a Rickshaw

By GERTRUDE GELBIN.

SYNOPSIS.

Bill Carey, traveling through the orient as guest of Lady Harrison and her millionaire father, meets Manon de Vargues, beautiful French half-caste in Saigon. Because half-castes are social outcasts, Manon is trying desperately to make Paris Delarouge, richest and most powerful man in Saigon, get her a passport to France. Delarouge, madly in love with her, refuses, he wants to keep Manon in Saigon. A chance meeting between Bill and Manon results in their dining together at a native cafe where Nina, Manon's friend, sings. Delarouge of planning to run away with her. She denies it, but later confesses to Bill that she is leaving in the morning. Since Bill sails to Singapore with the Harrisons next day, they decide to say good-bye to Saigon. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT III.

"And there I was," he continued. "Out of college—flatter than a pancake and with only one accomplishment—how to spend money."

"But you had no money," she said. "It was all gone."

"That was the drawback—no money, no brains. And that's how I became a house guest."

"Who's guest, M'sieur, did you become?"

"Anybody's! Anybody with a swimming pool, a tennis court and a debutante lying around loose."

"It's a very sad story, M'sieur," Manon sighed. She looked up toward the piano. "Oh—Nina—my friend—is going to sing now. We must listen."

A half-caste girl appeared on the platform and sang a heart-breaking song.

"She sings very well, don't you think?" Manon whispered.

"Beautifully," Bill agreed solemnly. "When are you leaving Saigon, Mademoiselle?"

"Tomorrow."

"Where are you going?"

"Where?—Oh—I'm going home."

"Where is that?"

"I go there on the river ship," she said vaguely.

"Far?" he asked.

"Very far."

Nina finished her song and joined them. She stared at Bill with open curiosity. "You are not long in Saigon?"

"Arrived yesterday," he replied. "He's helping me say good-bye to Saigon," Manon explained.

"How sweet," murmured Nina. "That is very nice of M'sieur—" she stopped short. "Monsieur Delarouge just entered—"

Delarouge came to their table at once. "Good evening, Manon. Good evening M'sieur Carey." He nodded to Nina.

"Monsieur Delarouge!" Nina cried. "The manager will be so proud you are here."

"I'm only here for a moment—"

he turned to Bill. "I met your friends. They were wondering where you were. The young lady was very upset—"

"Sorry to hear anybody's suffering over me," Bill answered blithely. "Thought I'd do a little sightseeing on my own. It's a lovely town." He smiled full at Manon. "Especially, M'sieur, when looked at from the right angle."

"Too bad you haven't home time to get better acquainted with it," Delarouge observed coldly. "Your boat leaves—when?"

"We hop off in a few hours."

Delarouge swung around to Manon. "And you, Manon, he shot out at her—when are you leaving?"

"I'm told at your hotel you had given up your rooms—"

"Oh, that's the interrupted. "Yes, I left the hotel because it is too expensive. I'm going to live here, with Nina—"

Nina nodded gently. "Yes, M'sieur. That is true."

Manon met his searching gaze with a calm serenity. "I was deeply upset," he said at last. "I thought you were running away without a goodbye, Manon." He smiled at her. "I will see you tomorrow, then—here?"

"Yes," she said quietly.

Delarouge turned to Bill. "I am taking your friends on a sightseeing tour—would you not like to go, too?"

"No thanks," Bill answered. "However—if you ever get to New York, look me up and I'll take you on a sightseeing tour—"

Delarouge smiled sardonically. "Goodnight," he said and bowed, left them.

When he had gone, Bill beamed at Manon. "Good work! But whom were you fooling about going away—me or him?"

"Why should I fool you?" she asked softly.

"I see," he said understandingly. "One only fools one's friends—especially if one's friends like one too much—"

"Oh, no," interrupted Nina. "One must always be polite to Monsieur Delarouge. He is very important and if you do something he doesn't like—" she shuddered in horror at the thought. "Why he can tell the Governor of the Military! They listen to him very much. Everybody is afraid of him because he knows everything about everybody—"

"Oh," grinned Bill. "The Local Krakenstein. Well—Manon, let's get out before the boogymen gets back—"

"Where will we go?" she asked.

"Oh, I thought you might like to say goodbye to Saigon in a rickshaw for a few hours. And I could come along and help you be sad and wave at the buildings—"

"That would be nice," she murmured.

He rose. "I'll go dig up a rickshaw somewhere. Now you won't disappear?"

"Oh, no."

"I have my doubts—but I'll be back with a go-cart. And with a wave of farewell, he hurried off.

"Is he important? Can he help you, Manon? You don't have to go away?"

Manon shook her head sadly. "I hoped so. I thought maybe at first. But he is nobody, Nina." She sighed again. "He is just somebody very sweet and very nice—"

Manon stared musically into space. "Yes," she repeated softly, "he is nobody—only he's very sweet and very nice."

Nina's eyes filled with tears. "Then you must go?"

"But Manon," Nina said hesitantly, "what about M'sieur Delarouge?"

A wry smile crossed Manon's face. "No, I think it will be better for me to marry Kim Kahoum—"

"Couldn't Delarouge be better than marrying someone who lives in a jungle?" Nina persisted.

Manon smiled and shook her head. "No. Besides M'sieur Kim Kahoum goes to Paris every few years and the government is kind to him. They allow him to take along his wife."

"All of them?" asked Nina impressed.

"No. Only those he prefers. He will take me. And when I am in Paris, Nina, I will run out of the hotel. I will run down the street and turn a corner and hide myself forever in the white world."

"Oh, Manon! You are so brave!"

"And I will marry a member of the Chamber of Deputies," Manon continued happily. "And I shall tell him I cannot be happy unless he sends for you. And he will send for you. I promise—"

She kissed Nina and hurried over to meet Bill.

The rickshaw drove them slowly through the town. Their talk subsided into silence at the moonlit beauty of the empty streets.

"The night is sweeter when it is silent, isn't it," she observed softly.

Bill nodded. "I've no complaints about this night. Except that it'll be over a little too soon."

"Yes. In a little while."

"Sometimes people walk backwards through life looking at a single night. I'm going to look at this one a long time."

"What will you remember?" she asked.

"That I met a lady who had eyes like birds flying away. And that I didn't have sense enough to hold her hand."

She slipped her hand into his. "Please don't remember that," she murmured.

"It would help a little if I knew something about you, Manon. A few details—for the long winter nights—"

"I think it is better like this. The less we know—the more we will remember—"

"You're right, Manon. It won't make much difference after tomorrow."

"Where do you go?" she asked gently.

"To Singapore on the Harrison's yacht."

"And then?"

"Oh—different places. Places you start at and forget."

"Do you go to Paris?" she questioned.

"We get there sometimes," he answered shortly.

"I will think of you there," she smiled.

"And where do I think of you, Manon?"

"In Paris. If you wish. Walking beside you—"

"Manon—won't you tell me where you are going?"

She shook her head. "I take the river boat tomorrow at Angkor Vat—and then I go inland—far away—"

"Far away," he repeated after her and lapsed into a moody silence.

The rickshaw pulled up at the water's edge. Bill hopped out of the cart and helped Manon alight. The runner, a sad-faced native, beamed wearily at them.

"How much?" Bill asked him.

"Give him 10 francs an hour," Manon warned. "That's all—no more—"

"Ten francs?" Bill grinned.

"That's just for ordinary hours isn't it?" He counted out a handful of money and gave it to the coolie.

Final Proof of Affection So Simple It's Frequently Overlooked

Old Boy Friends Don't Interest Girl in Love

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: More than a year ago we fell in love with one another and a month ago I asked this girl to be my wife. She said she would. I was perfectly honest with her, told her that I would have to save some money before we got married and I also told her that I couldn't save anything as we were now going. Several dollars spent every date night and sometimes more. So she agreed that we would cut down on our amusements and hurry things up.

No sooner than it was all settled she began to make excuses about dates, telling me that her mother wanted her to go this place or that with her and I found out there were always old boy friends at these places. She was going. One thing that worries me. I haven't an automobile and while she tells me she doesn't mind, she has told her friends that she despises to go out with me because she's not been about riding buses and streetcars. Now where do I stand?

E. L.

Answer: Young man, whatever the young miss has in the back of her head about marrying you later on, she doesn't love you and you are out on a limb with nothing to stand on. If you want the proof put into words you may have it. When a girl is in love she doesn't lie to "the big moment." When she's in love she isn't interested in old boy friends. When she's in love she is willing to sit out the date, walk, ride the streetcar or the bus, whichever is necessary to be with him. That's the thing she's most concerned with—being with him. And funny, too, that's always the best proof of love between lovers, friends, husbands and wives: The desire to be together.

There's more: A gal in love never lets her best beau down before her friends. If he's poor she says she doesn't mind poverty. If he never says a word she tells them she adores silent people. She's always building him up, setting him up, trying to make her friends understand how lucky she is to have him.

Now this would be a sad, sad story to tell a fellow but for one thing. In the long run it's much better to have the wool pulled off his eyes than over his eyes.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Please say what you think of a father who demands that his 20-year-old son turn over every cent he earns every Saturday night, allows him nothing for spending money and won't give him the car to take his girl to ride Sunday afternoon.

Answer: Why he's a tyrant father and his son is foolish to stay at home and submit to such tyranny. If the boy's spirit isn't already broken it will be and he should get away while the getting is good.

Dotty Lamour Adds Oriental Touch To Summer Costume of White Linen

By Sheilah Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 10.—Dorothy Lamour adds an oriental touch to a summer costume she wears in "Disputed Passage." The dress resembles a coat and is cut in circular fashion from crisp white linen, worn over a silk wine-colored slip. Miss Lamour's hat is a woven cordie model with a snood of wine striped cambric, a white silk shirt and a white snood dotted with gray flowers.

Ann Sheridan coins a new fashion phrase with what she calls her "plus-tos" for bicycling. The outfit consists of a pair of long shorts just a half-inch above the knees in gray and black wide-striped cambric, a white silk shirt and a white snood dotted with gray flowers.

Jane Wyman, at a recent preview, wore a red and white small-checked silk jersey dress. A one-inch hem of plain bright red bound the low square neck and short sleeves. Jane's hat was a large-brimmed straw hat trimmed with a large matching blue quill gave a jaunty highlight to Miss Dunne's suit.

Rosalind Russell, co-starring with Norma Shearer and Joan Crawford in "The Women," wears, in the picture, an evening gown of changeable blue and silver taffeta with the back draped into a bow catching the fullness below the waistline. The bodice meets the bow in lacing of black velvet ribbon. Black velvet also edges the hem of the dress, which is tucked.

A striking beach ensemble was displayed by Lana Turner at a recent Malibu party. Made of a flingee flowered print in red, blue and white, the brassiere bodice was edged in Valenciennes lace, the lace also edging the bloomer-style shorts. Over the suit, the actress wore a terry-cloth fitted coat in white, lined with the flowered print of the shorts. Her hat was in natural raffia with wine-red fish-net crown. She carried a beach bag of raffia, embroidered in vivid marine-life designs.

Virginia Bruce wears a necklace of black and white flowered balls strung on a silk cord with her evening gown of printed black and white satin. The necklace, designed especially for the M-G-M actress by Dolly Tree, hangs almost to the waistline.

Avoid Back-Door Tactics in Hand Of Bridge

By Harold Sharpsteen.

Dear Mr. Sharpsteen: My partner opened the bidding, vulnerable, with one heart. I held: S-K Q 10 8 D-A 7 6 H-Q 10 6 C-A Q 10

What was my correct response? It seems I had many possible responses to choose from. I hesitated between bidding one spade as a one-over-one, one-round force to hear again from my partner; the hand looked too strong for a simple raise in hearts; not sufficient trumps for a game-forcing double raise. I finally decided on a two-notrump forcing response over a two-spade take-out and was criticized for not bidding three notrump.

O. A. W. Nashville, Tenn. Whenever you have an opportunity to paint such a precise picture of your high-card and distributional values do not fail to use the three notrump takeout which is a highly specialized response, indicating 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 honor tricks, a 4-3-3-3 hand pattern. The above hand fits the requirements exactly and would be a much better response than a one-over-one spade takeout, a jump takeout in spades, or a possible two-notrump response. Two notrump, while promising approximately 3 1/2 honor tricks, does not guarantee a 4-3-3-3 hand pattern, which the three notrump response emphatically does.

Question: Some persons with whom I play are regarded as local experts and they have a fondness for opening three and even two-card minor suits, expecting me to name either four-card major suit. Is that Culbertson? They claim it is a "slight deviation."

J. B. Mc. Marion, Ind. Answer: The bidding sequence as you give it is definitely not Culbertson. In following the principle of preparedness by bidding a three-card minor, as A 10 7 and so on, there is no requirement that partner respond in a four-card major, unless holding a legitimate biddable major suit.

Three-card minor suit openings should be avoided unless there is no other way out when the holding is too strong to pass. None of the ranking players of the country follow any such bidding formula as you relate. It sounds like some logical fad. Usually players who praise these arrangements loudest soon abandon them for newer and equally unsound practices.

When you have something to tell partner, bid your hand in the regular way. If there is game or slam in the hand you will reach it through the main entrance. Sneaking up on game contracts by the back doors and fire escapes is dangerous practice.

Exercise Tones Stretched Muscles

By Ida Jean Kain.

What we do not blame on our ancestors, we are inclined to blame on our children. Women are always harking back to the nice slim figures they used to have before Junior or Janet arrived. It is true that a majority of the bad figures date from this experience, but it need not be so.

Probably the trouble is that women seem to have such boundless confidence that nature will take care of everything in due time. They feel so nice and flat! But those muscles are stretched and flabby. And flabby muscles continue to take on fat, the excess weight interferes with activity—making a further gain easy—and so it goes!

This is the one time in a woman's life when exercise is a downright necessity. Many obstetricians agree that you will be stronger at the end of two weeks in bed if a few simple exercises are performed during this recuperative period. With your doctor's permission, you may begin abdominal exercise the first week following the baby's arrival.

This first exercise is so mild that you might fail to recognize it as exercise! The movements consist mainly of raising the arms slowly overhead, trying to press the small of the back down flat against the mattress, and bending the head forward on the chest and raising the head and shoulders just enough to clear the bed. Another exercise sometimes given at this time is to lie on the stomach for 30 minutes, night and morning, with a pillow above and below the breasts to protect them.

In the second week the exercise may be slightly increased and the following may be taken: Lie flat on the back, knees flexed and feet on the bed, arms down at the sides on the bed. Pull the lower abdominal muscles up and in and touch the small of the back to the bed. Then, inhaling, circle the arms up on the bed until they are straight overhead. Exhale as the arms are circled back to the sides and the feet slid down on the bed.

By the third week you will be ready for fairly active exercises—but not a single one should be attempted until it has been approved by your doctor. You should perform all the movements slowly, relaxing completely between each exercise.
A well-fitted girdle will give support and help to prevent your

MY DAY Should Tenants Do the Improving?

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK.—The President has always greatly enjoyed his trees and the acquisition of land up here. Now the bug for rearranging houses has bitten him. Every time he sees an old shack or an old barn, he begins to wonder what could be done with it to make it habitable. Of course, it is perfectly fascinating to do over buildings into living quarters and then to see what people will do with the shell you have provided when they move in. I find that the original work never ends and that you have to keep on indefinitely to maintain any house in working order.

I begin to think that we should always rent with the understanding that our tenants will do all the improving, otherwise, since we are really interested in keeping up our property, every penny of rent seems to go into the upkeep. This is perfectly all right so long as we don't have to count on any of that cash to live on ourselves, but most people have to get some small cash return out of their investments besides the amount they put back into the business, whether it is an industry or a real estate proposition.

The President spent yesterday afternoon as usual, going around the place. Mr. Sidney Hillman, who was with him, at least saw a good deal of the countryside. Whether he had an opportunity to talk about the things he wanted to talk about is quite another question. We were alone in the evening except for our sister-in-law and our daughter-in-law, Betty. I was firmly told by the President the house this morning after my ride to come over to the cottage, there were three gentlemen waiting for him, and they all looked as though they were on business bent.

A few people are coming to lunch, among them Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taussig. Mr. Taussig is chairman of the national advisory committee of the National Youth Administration and is planning for a meeting of that committee here in early September, when the President is back from his cruise.

I have just received a most interesting notice from the World's Fair Housing Bureau, Inc. They tell me that they have listed over 100,000 rooms for World's Fair visitors, ranging in price from 50 cents, $1.00, $1.50 and up. I hear so many complaints about the cost of coming to New York city that I thought I should pass on this bit of information to my readers. They can write ahead to the World's Fair Housing Bureau, which is the mayor's official committee in the Chanin building, 142 East 42d street.

I find there is so much in the fair that can be seen free, that one can probably obtain more entertainment for less money than in the usual places that many of us frequent when on pleasure bent. Children find so much of interest at the fair about our own states and other nations, that I can imagine no better way of developing both a national and international interest in the youth of the country.

Wear a Posy for Romance; Stimulate Skin for Blushes

By LILLIAN MAE.

Milady has always worn rings on her fingers, but now she can have flowers on her fingers as well.

A very fine person who is constantly alert to beautify feminine hands, has prepared for you just the most attractive little trick—an adjustable ring of fine rhodium finish with a loop at the back, through which there is slipped a costume flower, just large enough to make your hand look tiny, fragile and beguiling.

Of course you can't do too many things with flowers during this summer season, but it's my bet you hadn't thought up that one! Of course you will want to match your nail polish and your posy perched so saucily on your finger, so in purchasing your posy be sure to get the flower which suits it. Of course you may change the flower, just as you change nail tints.

If you want to be really different, you'll be the first one to possess a posy ring. And better than best, they are for a short time, being given complimentary with the purchase of the new high shades of a very splendid polish. Bring Blushes to Cheeks.

Are you beginning to wonder what has become of your blushes? Well, let me help you restore them. Time, weather, etc., do rob complexion of their freshness, and set up a very definite need for stimulation.

I have been using a skin stimulant of a delicate pinkish tint, which is in lotion form, and has an emulsified oil base. Smoothing becoming overly tired. Another valuable aid is the uplift brush. Neither of these will tone the muscles, however, and the only real correction for stretched muscles is exercise.

Perhaps you should have looked into all this years ago, but it is never too late to remedy matters. You may not be able to see any improvement for some months, but you can have a nice figure again! You will probably get best results from exercises like this:

Lie on the floor on the back with knees flexed and feet on floor, arms down at the side. Raise the hips off the floor until your body is in a straight line from knees to chest, and as you do so fling the arms up on the floor overhead. Hold for a second, feeling the pull in all the muscles of chest and abdomen, then return to the beginning position.

Spinal Curvature Too Often Neglected

By Dr. William Brady.

So far as the general population is concerned physical education in this country is a silly waste of time. This attitude of the public reflects the snobbery of our educators (themselves physically uneducated) toward this comparatively modern departure of education. With few exceptions the high-brows have done everything they could to prevent introduction of a department of physical education into the public school system and have by their ignorant, intolerant attitude encouraged misguided parents and their children to evade physical instruction even when some sort of physical work has been nominally required for graduation. The sorry course the educators have pursued in reference to physical training leads one to question whether it is worth while looking through college except where it is indispensable for a license to practice a profession or as a qualification to get a job.

Probably less than one-fifth of all cases of spinal curvature leading to permanent deformity are diagnosed in the stage when proper treatment can restore the body to normal. The reasons for this negligence are (1) the readiness of parents and many teachers to aid and abet evasion of proper physical training by the "delicate" or "not strong" child in school; (2) the failure of the family doctor to insist on the child's right to a fair education; and (3) the penny-wise pound-foolish idea that mere delicacy or physical frailty in a growing child is "natural" or "inherited" and does not merit medical attention.

If a child from 6 to 19 years of age has a "high shoulder" or "high hip," a tendency to slump or drop the shoulders and stand in the swayback position with chest sunken and belly protruding (potentially) medical care is always necessary to prevent development of permanent deformity. Suitable exercises prescribed by the physician for special corrective purpose, as well as a regular program of daily play within the child's physical capabilities, are an important part of the treatment. Braces, corsets or other mechanical supports or props should never be used except under medical supervision.

Nutritional deficiency, not lack of sufficient nourishment, is probably the most common fundamental factor of spinal curvature. It is a boon for all growing children who are "delicate" or "weak" on physical development if they can receive a daily ration of the essential vitamins B-complex and D to supplement their diet. This helps to overcome the constitutional incapacity to assimilate calcium and phosphorus (vitamin D) and the neuromuscular weakness (vitamin B-complex) which account for the chronic fatigue of such children. Relieved of his or her constant feeling of lassitude the young person regains some of the natural desire or inclination to play, comes alive again. This is important in its bearing on exercise in the prevention and correction of spinal curvature and other physical deficiencies or deformities, no matter what individual or special method of management may be required in the given case.

I again apply it, followed with my freshener before making up. It is equally good for dry, normal or oily skin and has a delicate bouquet of fragrance.

Phone me, and I'll tell you the names of the manufacturer of the posy rings and the skin stimulant, and where they may be purchased. If you do not live in Atlanta, write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

NEW YORK, AUG. 10.—(P)—

The bond market took a glance at provocative political headlines from Danzig today, then followed stocks along downward, closing with losses of fractions to 2 or more among the leaders.

Industrial, rails and utilities all retreated in the corporate division, although the only tangible new European news was that the Nazi leader in Danzig was to make a speech. Fears what he might say might provoke a new Danzig crisis was all securities needed to wing into a decline. The talk did not appear until trading was over.

Some foreign dollar bonds in the stock exchange reflected the tension.

Dealings in United States government securities, with most treasuries 1-3/2 to 2-2/2 of a point lower. On the sale of one bond, however, the treasury 3s of '48-49 dropped 20-32nds.

Transactions totaled $4,769,000, for value, compared with $4,314,300 Wednesday.

TARZAN AND THE FIRES OF TOHR No. 43

The slaves, released one by one, began to trickle out of their barracks, bringing their picks as weapons. But they were still too few and too poorly armed to withstand an assault of the well-equipped guards. Kalluk, though unafraid, believed death was near.

The ape-man reached down and picked up the end of a length of rusty, discarded slave-chain. He took a firm stance, legs apart, his feet gripping the ground. For a moment he watched the Tohrman charge. Then he swung the chain in a great arc—and let fly!

The impromptu weapon hurtled through the air, crashed into several of the leading guards, and flattened them to the ground. Before their comrades could gather themselves for a second charge, Tarzan leaped forward and snatched up the swords of the fallen Tohrmans.

Then he sprang back and tossed the swords—all but one—at the feet of the liberated slaves. The battle was on, a bloody battle to the death, with the odds still in favor of the guards. Worst of all, the din of combat carried the alarm to the Tohrman army outside.
